The Stone Man

Q. When I was 8 years old I visited the Nu-Pike Fun Park. I remember walking through a house trailer and seeing a man, still alive, turning into stone. My friends at work don't believe me. Where can I get some proof? L.G., Downey.

Q. Is the ossified man who used to be, at the Nu-Pike still alive? C. F., Long Beach.

A. John D. Shouse, "Wonderful John, the Stone Man," is still alive. He lives with his wife in Commerce, Okla., and operates a newspaper clipping service. "I am still going strong," he told ACTION LINE. "I like it here in Commerce because I have lots of friends and relatives nearby. I keep busy with the newspaper clipping service. I'm lucky that I still can move my left arm," he said. Some 38 years ago, doctors gave "Wonderful John" six months to live. He says he suffers from osteopetrosis. According to two medical reference books, osteopetrosis is a very rare, hereditary disease in which there is excessive calcification of the bones. The cause is unknown. In a newspaper interview 10 years ago, John said he felt himself very fortunate because "my teeth are all in excellent condition. I've never had a bit of trouble with them."

For Your Information

Q. Is it true that the Internal Revenue Service, upon receiving a tip-off on income tax evaders and after collecting back taxes from them, will give the informant a certain percentage of the amount collected? If so, what is the percentage given? S.F., Long Beach.

A. Section 7623 of Treasury Decision No. 6421 authorizes the Internal Revenue Service to pay informants "for information that leads to the detection and punishment of any person guilty of violating any internal revenue law, or conspiring at the same." Top reward possible is 10 per cent of the amount the government recovers, and the average is informant who asks a money reward, 19 ask for no more 4 to 5 per cent. The IRS issues rewards only upon the specific claim of the informant and after determining that his information helped materially in the recovering of additional taxes. Internal revenue figures show that for every informant who asks a money reward, 19 ask for no more than the satisfaction of knowing their reports gets attention. After an informant gets a reward, Internal Revenue agents check to see whether he reports the money on his return as taxable income. The IRS stresses that it "solicits informants only in illicit traffic in alcoholic liquors, machine guns and certain other firearms, and of the special taxes on wagering." Trained special agents of the IRS Intelligence Division evaluate the information and determine the extent to which investigation, if any, is warranted. Only 10 per cent of the information items received reach the point of even a preliminary investigation.

Beat the Band

Q. I am very interested in the music which was popular during the 1930s and 40s. I have two tape recorders and a large record collection. Are there any clubs I could join? D.W., Lakewood.

A. We could not drum up any clubs which hold actual meetings. However, there are two organizations composed of big-band buffs. The American Society for the Preservation of Big Band Sounds publishes a magazine called the "Big Band Sound" which lists the places where big bands are appearing. Membership in the society costs $1 per year and the magazine subscription costs $5 per year. For more information regarding the society, write to Mrs. Orlene Young, 1061 N. Richman Ave., Fullerton, Calif. 92632. The Glenn Miller Society, based in London, England, publishes a magazine for its members entitled "The Moonlight Serenader." The membership costs $4 for editions sent air mail and $2 for sea mail. To apply for membership or for more information on the Glenn Miller Society, write to Fred Woodruff, P.O. Box 1569, Long Beach.

Something to Contribute

Q. Recently a woman identifying herself as "Miss West of the Exceptional Children's Foundation of Garden Grove" called my home and spoke to my wife. She discussed the needs of the foundation. My wife said she would make a small contribution. Then the woman said she could not accept a contribution without giving something for it, but if my wife would take a two-year subscription to Look magazine, the money would go to the foundation. Is there an Exceptional Children's Foundation in Garden Grove or is it all a hoax? D.M.M., Los Alamitos.

A. You will find the Exceptional Children's Foundation Center of Garden Grove at 9252 Garden Grove Blvd., Suite 15, (714) 534-6750. The center, which opened April 1, is a tax-exempt, parent-sponsored organization which provides speech, hearing and visual perception therapy to youngsters at reduced rates, said Richard Schwartzberg, office manager. He explained that to obtain funds to help keep the center open, the foundation has an arrangement with Look magazine. Look gives them a percentage of the price of each subscription sold. He noted the arrangement supplies the foundation with more than $100 a week on the average. The woman who contacted your wife is employed by National Organizational Services, a subscription firm. It is against company policy for her to take donations for the foundation. However, your wife may make donations directly to the foundation. If you have any questions, Schwartzberg said he would be happy to answer them or refer you to Ann Schwartzberg, president of the foundation.

SOUND OFF!

I'm 15 years old and I'd like to know what's wrong with some of the kids today. I just read in the paper about some kids trying to tear down the American flag and put up a Viet Cong flag in its place. They said this country was no longer theirs. Well, I'd like them to go to another country for a while and just see how soon they'd come back to America. They'd see soon enough what they had missed. A.T.A., Long Beach.

Rafferty Disputes Charges

Tried to Enlist, Sang in Choir, Candidate Insists
By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Dr. Max Rafferty, Republican nominee for U.S. Senate, Friday criticized "allegations of draft-dodging and atheism" published by "some local press in some communities."

The Independent Press-Telegram Friday completed a five-part series on Dr. Rafferty, including his contention he tried to enlist in the Navy V-12 program in 1940 (which was not started until 1942) and the statement of a Trona teacher that Rafferty "boasted of his atheism" in the 1940s.

At a Los Angeles news conference, Rafferty insisted he did try to enlist in the Navy program, but said it was known in 1940 as V-1 and was later changed into the V-12 program. He said he spent a day at the Los Angeles Arsenal trying to enlist, but was rejected because of "bad feet."

On the matter of religion, Rafferty said he was not only active in the Episcopal Church in Needles (1957-58) but "was a senior warden and a member of the Bishop's Committee."

HE TOLD newsmen that as a boy he sang in the choir in the church at Sioux City, Iowa, "got medals for it and have been an active member all my life."

He said "any responsible, any reputable journalist could have established that the V-12 program was an outgrowth of V-1."

After citing his church record, Rafferty added, "Any series that can be so wrong (in this regard) is probably wrong in other respects."

In his statement Rafferty did not mention the I, P, T's documented report that he first applied for a deferment extension and later appealed his 1A classification before he was finally classified 4F and rejected. He did not mention statements by his first wife that she did not recall his claimed attempt to enlist in the Navy — though they were married at the time — or her statement in the I, P, T that he would "shoot a toe off" rather than serve in the armed forces, and that he told her church was for "women and fools."

IN A QUESTION and answer session after a later Town Hall speech in the Biltmore Hotel ballroom, Rafferty repeated names he had been called by his Democratic opponent, Alan Cranston — "liar, smear artist, disciple of violence and a political joke."

Rafferty added "one Southern California newspaper, apparently in conjunction with my opponent," had added "draft-dodger and atheist" to the list. He said name-calling "generally leads to violence."

Rash of Brush Fires, Smog Plague County

The year's second smog alert and a rash of brush fires struck Los Angeles County Friday as temperatures soared into the mid-90s.

One of the fires, which burned more than 500 acres in foothills, rimming the north end of the San Fernando Valley, raged out of control through the night.

In Orange County, firemen quickly controlled a four-acre brush fire that broke out Friday morning near the Tucker Bird Sanctuary in Modjeska Canyon.

Air Pollution Control District (APCD) officials called the first-stage smog alert at 1:54 p.m. when the ozone content in air over Azusa reached .52 parts per million parts of air.

The APCD canceled the alert at 3:25 p.m. when the ozone count dropped to a "safe" .43 parts.

Firemen in Los Angeles promptly controlled two pesky brush fires—one on the slope of an overpass at the Harbor Freeway and First Street.

Police temporarily halted all traffic on the freeway, allowing firemen to drag hoses up the overpass slope and quench the blaze.

Another minor fire charred light grass near the end of Broadway at Stadium Way before being brought under control.

were battling the stubborn blaze that lighted the night sky in the Chatsworth area after breaking out near an Army Nike missile site some 40 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles.

Two firemen were slightly burned Friday afternoon as flames, fanned by hot, 20 mph winds, fanned back over the bulldozer they were operating and destroyed it.

Some 26 fire trucks, three bulldozers, two helicopters and two fixed-wing aerial water tankers were being used to combat the blaze.

Flames were visible from most of the San Fernando Valley and from the Newhall area.

California Highway Patrol officers watched for a fire threat to motorists on nearby Interstate 5. Flames were raging just two miles from the highway.

L.A. County firemen and State Division of Forestry crews were battling the blaze, but teenage firefighters from county forestry camps were noticeably absent from the scene.

Seven probation camp teenagers and an adult supervisor were killed two

Nixon in Texas Vying With Wallace

HOUSTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon came to LBJ country Friday with the avowed purpose of wooing conservatives of both parties away from possible support of third-party candidate George Wallace.

The GOP presidential nominee visited national space flight facilities, appeared at an evening rally in downtown Houston and attended conferences with key Republican leaders.

Nixon said he considered the nation's space program as "one of our national imperatives" that must be supported at a level "assuring efficient and steady progress."

Wallace has been developing strength in Texas and it was at the request of Republican leaders in the state that Nixon decided this was the time to harden the lines — "not with (President) Johnson, but between Nixon and (Vice President) Humphrey."

Nixon toured the Manned Spacecraft Center with Dr. Robert R. Gilruth, the center's director, and with Astronaut Gordon Cooper. Cooper showed Nixon the two spacecraft he flew into orbit. In the mission control center, Nixon donned a flight controller's headset and got a briefing by Chris Craft, head of the mission control operation.

The stop was the third in a nationwide swing in which Nixon's aim is to establish himself as the advocate of "the great silent majority who pay their taxes, support their churches, schools and unions, raise their children to be good Americans and send their sons to act as watchmen on the walls of freedom around the world."

Nixon told newsmen he favors supplying U.S. Phantom jet interceptors to Israel if this proves necessary to maintain an uneasy Mideastern peace by Israeli military superiority over her neighbors.

Say Order by Hershey Is 'Illegal'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department Friday reopened its feud with Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey by indicating that draft boards have been illegally reclassifying some Vietnam war protesters and ordering their induction.

The department filed a brief with the Supreme Court in the case of James J. Oestereich, a Cheyenne, Wyo., theological student, who has been ordered to report for military service after turning in his draft card at an antiwar demonstration in Washington on Oct. 16, 1967.

Oestereich's case will be heard by the Supreme Court in the term starting Oct. 7. He attends Andover-Newton Theological Seminary in Newton Centre, Mass.

The Justice Department attorney took the position that the Cheyenne draft board had no right to change classification because all students preparing for the ministry are draft exempt by law.

Pursuing the matter at much greater length in the new brief, it cited a letter by Hershey on Oct. 26, 1967, telling local boards to apply delinquency reclassification procedures to "misguided registrants" who engage in "illegal activity" in "violation of the act or regulations."

"IT IS DIFFICULT to believe that Congress intended the local boards to have the unfettered discretion to decide that any violation of the act or regulations warrants a declaration of delinquency, reclassification and induction, regardless of its relationship to the individual's status as exempt or deferred or whatever," the brief said.

The brief used very polite language in chastising Hershey and — in a manner unusual in government briefs — also set forth Hershey's position in order to give the court benefit of his "responsibly held views."

The brief said that in addition to being illegal, some reclassifications probably are unconstitutional because under standards established by the Supreme Court they may well constitute punishment imposed without the constitutional safeguards prescribed for criminal trial.

Cong Terrorists Bombings Kill 11 in Saigon

Combined News Services

SAIGON, Saturday — Viet Cong terrorists struck twice in Saigon Friday night and Communist forces dealt U.S. paratroopers heavy losses in a blazing battle in a rice paddy only 26 miles away.

One Viet Cong terrorist bomb leveled a Vietnamese information bureau in the Cholon section of the capital, killing 10 Vietnamese civilians and injuring 22 others. Hours later, a single Communist 122mm rocket smashed into a crowded home in the southwestern corner of the city and killed one person and wounded 11 others. Eight of the wounded were children.

U.S. paratroopers sweeping a rice paddy area 26 miles northwest of Saigon were hit by heavy automatic weapons fire as they assaulted in by helicopter and suffered 34 killed and 33 wounded in heavy fighting. The paratroopers killed 31 Communist troops and captured 124 suspects in the sweep after finally driving away most of the Viet Cong. Only six of those taken prisoner were identified as Viet Cong soldiers. The explosion was the worst terrorist attack in the capital in more than a month. About two hours later a young Viet Cong female terrorist, dressed in blue jeans and a white shirt, shot and wounded a government ward chief in another section of Cholon.

The blast leveled the information bureau and an adjacent building in the Cholon Chinatown district of the capital, trapping many victims inside. The bodies of two of the victims, a woman and a child, were not recovered for hours until several truckloads of debris had been cleared away. All of the victims were Vietnamese, including one policeman.

U.S. military police headquarters at first reported 13 persons had been killed, but MPs and correspondents at the scene said only 10 bodies were found in the wreckage. Early today, Viet Cong guerrillas launched a mortar and rocket attack on the city of My Tho in the Mekong Delta about 40 miles southwest of Saigon. No casualties were reported, however. Another group of Viet Cong troops attacked the nearby city of Gao Duc, setting fire to about 20 houses in the small hamlet and killing eight popular force defenders in a watchtower outside the hamlet. Another 25 defenders were wounded.

Pope Paul to Retire at 75 in 1972

ROME — An unidentified priest, described as very close to Pope Paul VI, reported in an Italian magazine Friday that the Pope has prepared a letter of resignation to be made public when he reaches age 75. That will be Sept. 26, 1972. It would be the second papal resignation in church history and the first in nearly 700 years. The weekly L'Europeo, in an article by "Monsignor X," said the Pope wrote the letter himself and turned it over to "a person of full confidence" before undergoing a prostate operation last Nov. 4. The article said the Pope decided to resign four years from now because he wanted to be sure a man in complete health carries out "decisions of historic importance" to the Roman Catholic Church. Popes are elected for life by the cardinals of the church. The only pontiff on record as having resigned his office was Celestine V, in 1294.

Claim Three Biafran Hospitals Bombed

SAO TOME — Medical personnel who flew here with the Biafran relief aircraft Friday reported that Nigerian MIGs have bombed three Biafran hospitals, leaving scores of casualties. A doctor from a hospital at Ithala said that the heaviest bombardment took place north of Owerri. Thirty patients were killed and 60 were seriously injured in the bombing of Ithala Hospital, the doctor said. "It was a savage sight, babies in their cots were cut in two." Hospitals at Ozubulu and Nnewe, both within eight miles of Ithala, were also bombed on the same day according to doctors from the area. There were said to be many dead and wounded in the attacks.

Dubcek Appeal: Think of The Future

PRAGUE — Alexander Dubcek, the Czechoslovak Communist party leader Friday night appealed to the nation to "think not only of today but also of the future" and to help his regime satisfy Moscow's demands that Czechoslovakia return to "normal." The Czechoslovak party presidium, holding its first meeting since it was elected one week ago, issued a declaration that it would "openly seek to remove all obstacles to normalization, wherever they may come from." The speech and declaration came amid indications that Moscow is growing impatient at the apparent delays in the "normalization" of Czechoslovakia. The Soviet Union's deputy foreign minister, Vasily Kuznetsov, arrived in Prague earlier Friday to confer with Czechoslovak President Ludvik Svoboda.

Thant Seeks to Break Peace-Talk Deadlock

PARIS — Secretary General Thant of the United Nations is expected to meet with American and North Vietnamese negotiators next week in an attempt to break the deadlock in the talks on the Vietnam war, sources said Friday. Thant will arrive in Paris Sept. 15 for a daylong visit, after attending the summit conference of the Organization of African Unity in Algiers. Informed sources said French President Charles de Gaulle plans to make a major statement on Vietnam at his press conference next Monday. They believed he again would urge the U.S. to set a date for withdrawal from Vietnam and halt bombing raids.

POWER PROBLEM EXTENDS CUBA SUMMER

HAVANA — The government announced Friday Cuba will remain on summer time to conserve oil consumed in producing electricity. The announcement pointed up the country's critical petroleum shortage which has forced gasoline rationing and other restrictions. Cuba was scheduled to end summer time Sunday and turn clocks back an hour. The Communist party newspaper Granma said the government decided Thursday that "we will not return to a normal time schedule but that in all the national territory the present schedule will remain in effect."

LBJ Hits 'Little Group' Trying To Block Fortas

WASHINGTON — President Johnson charged Friday into the fray over his nomination of Abe Fortas to be chief justice of the United States, declaring no "little group" of senators should be allowed to thwart the majority will through filibuster and parliamentary tricks. Johnson called the two Senate leaders — Montana Democrat Mike Mansfield and Republican Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois — to the White House for a wide ranging domestic and foreign affairs parley, and afterwards used some strong words at an impromptu news conference. The President said 60 to 70 of the 100 Senate members favor Fortas for the nation's top judicial post. He added: "We should not allow a little group — a sectional group, primarily, who disapprove of some opinions the Supreme Court justices have rendered — to be able, by parliamentary tricks, to filibuster and prevent the majority from expressing its viewpoint."

Western Airlines, Pilots in Accord

Negotiators for Western Airlines and the Airline Pilots Association Friday reached agreement on a contract after a brief walkout by the pilots.

Leverett Edwards, chairman of the National Mediation Board, said the contract, a broad pact involving the total employment relationship between the airline and pilots, was signed shortly before daylight.

Two Western flights at Los Angeles International Airport were canceled early and two others delayed by the walkout.

Miss Illinois Winner in Talent, Too

ATLANTIC CITY — Miss Illinois, winner in the talent division Thursday night, walked away with honors again Friday night by displaying her voluptuous figure in the final round of preliminary competition in the Miss America Pageant. The co-winner was Miss Florida who won in talent. Judith Ford, an 18-year-old platinum blond from Belvidere, Ill., with a 36-34½-36 measurements from bust to hips, took swim suit honors. Judi won the talent division with a masterful performance on the trampoline. Earlier, Linda Fitts was named the final title in the talent competition with her spirited version of the Charleston. Misses Florida and Illinois were among five girls to win preliminary honors as the contestants had their last chance to impress the judges before a Convention Hall audience of 7,300.

Alabama Racial Disturbance Quelled

ALABAMA — Sheriff's deputies used a disabling gas Friday in putting down an attempt by nearly 30 whites to keep two Negro women from teaching at Tanner Williams school with an all-white student body. The shouting whites surrounded the cars as the two teachers tried to enter the parking lot. Scores of parents rushed to the school minutes after the disturbance. "They're the scum of the community," said one mother. "I didn't want integration, but it's here and we should learn to live with it. I'd rather have a good colored teacher for my children than a sorry white one."

Choice of Cash or Trading Stamps Urged

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's consumer advisory council called Friday for laws requiring stores which offer trading stamps to give their customers a choice of cash instead. The council did not specify whether its recommendation should be carried out by local, state or federal laws. "Retailers who offer trading stamps should be required to disclose what he pays for these stamps and required to offer the consumer at the time of purchase either the trading stamps given or the price that the retailer actually has to pay the stamp company for same," the council proposed.

Church OKs 'Tearless' Rite

Combined News Services

The "tearless" marriage of schoolteacher Diane Podkawa to nightclub executive Thomas Lee Schoenlith was scheduled to go on today, after an issue over hypnotism was clarified with Roman Catholic officials. The 24-year-old brunette planned to keep a scheduled visit with hypnotist Ron Hutchins Friday night to get a post-hypnotic suggestion to keep the tears from cascading during the ceremony.

Miss Podkawa, who says she breaks out in uncontrollable sobs at joyous or sad events, said the hypnosis would not keep her from being "able to feel emotional during the wedding." Schoenlith, executive vice president of the Roostertail Restaurant, a nightclub overlooking the Detroit River, said about the hypnotism angle, "most people didn't understand." She agreed, noting she would not be actually hypnotized during the marriage ceremony at Our Lady Queen of Heaven chapel. The Very Rev. Albert G. Allen said there was nothing wrong with the post-hypnotic suggestion on crying, but added that if she were actually under hypnosis at the time of the wedding, the ceremony would not be approved. In the past, she was hypnotized to perform flawlessly in a local production of the "Unsinkable Molly Brown," and to lose between five and 10 pounds by avoiding ice cream and other sweets. She teaches second grade in suburban Warren.

SPEEDER SUED

Craig Breedlove, the world's land speed record holder, Friday was sued for divorce on grounds of adultery by his wife, Lee Ann, who holds the women's land racing title. Mrs. Breedlove's Superior Court suit accused her husband of committing adultery with five women, identified only as "Jane Does." The couple was married June 10, 1962, in Riverside, and separated last April 19. Breedlove and his wife, both 31, have no children. He lives in Turance and she resides in Palos Verdes Estates.

JOE KENNEDY

CELEBRATES

80TH BIRTHDAY

The patriarch of the Kennedy family, former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, reached his 80th birthday Friday, and celebrated it with a party for his more than 20 grandchildren. There was a birthday cake, and ice cream was served when the children gathered in the afternoon at the senior Kennedys' home overlooking Nantucket Sound. The older of the girls among the grandchildren made the cake in the kitchen of the nearby Robert Kennedy home.

Then the youngsters presented their grandfather with gifts, mostly handicraft they made themselves. They sang a few songs — self composed — and recited for their grandfather. Birthday greetings came by phone from Paris from the oldest daughter, Eunice, who is there with her husband, Sargent Shriver, ambassador to France.

Mrs. Rose Kennedy and her niece, Ann Gargan, along with daughters Jean Smith and Patricia Lawford, and the remaining Kennedy son, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, and his wife Joan, made up the adult dinner party in the evening.

MISSED AGAIN

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith missed her first Senate roll-call vote in 13 years Friday. Mrs. Smith, 70, who is extremely proud of her Senate attendance record, was recuperating in New York City's Columbia Presbyterian Hospital from an operation for an arthritic condition while the Senate voted on amendments to an appropriations bill. It was the first roll call the Maine Republican had missed since June 1, 1955.

TERM REDUCED

A five-year prison sentence for dope smuggling against American Dale Reed Warren has been reduced to three years, the U.S. Embassy reported Friday in Moscow. Warren was convicted July 8 in the Soviet central Asian city of Tashkent. He was arrested there May 12 on his way west from Kabul, Afghanistan, and charged with illegal possession of hashish, plus a currency violation.

WEDDING BELLS

Victoria Melanie Berle, daughter of comedian Milton Berle, will be married at Hillcrest Country Club in West Los Angeles today. Her husband-to-be is James Russell Nokes Jr., 22, of Houston, Tex., an electronics engineer. Miss Berle, 21, is Berle's daughter by his first wife, Mrs. Joyce Matthews Schmidt, a former Ziegfeld Follies girl. Nokes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Nokes, also of Houston.

Two years—and one wife—later, attorney Melvin Belli and his former wife, Joy, agreed Thursday to terms of a property settlement. Superior Court Judge Gerald S. Levin approved the settlement. Mrs. Belli will receive their Twin Peaks and Los Angeles homes, while Belli will retain his San Francisco law office building and apartment. The couple also agreed to place $150,000 in trust for 11-year-old Caesar Belli.

PARDONED

Haiti's President Francois Duvalier Friday pardoned a British official, John David Knox, who had been sentenced to death by a military court on an espionage charge, and ordered him to leave the country immediately. Knox, British information officer in the Bahamas, had been convicted on spy charges stemming from the aborted May invasion of Haiti by exiles and mercenaries.

WINS ROLE

Newsboy Calvin Peeler, 13, won a role in a new television show Friday, after writing to producer Robert Ross suggesting a Negro should be added to the cast. The show is titled "Mayberry RFD" and stars Ken Berry. On the strength of his letter young Peeler was flown to Hollywood where he was interviewed and signed for a small role in an episode of the series.

'MOST WANTED'

The FBI announced Friday the capture of one of the bureau's "ten most wanted men" in Los Angeles. Fred R. Yokom, a suspect in a Miami, Fla. armed robbery, was apprehended Friday in a Los Angeles restaurant. Yokom, 22, and two other men, allegedly invaded the home of a Miami jeweler last Jan. 4, tied up the victim, his wife and children, and escaped with $6,000.

MARCUSE NAMED

Dr. Herbert Marcuse, the controversial professor of philosophy at the University of California, San Diego, has been elected president of the American Philosophical Association, Pacific Division, it was announced Friday. Marcuse is the author of "One Dimensional Man," a book which has served as a philosophical rallying point for student activists, particularly in Europe.

ONE OF 18 WOMEN to complete seven-week training course to be sheriff's deputy in Orange County, Carol Miller, of Orange, is congratulated by Sheriff James A. Musick, who also commissioned 37 men. Lt. Sanford (Bud) Mann, commander of Academy training program, watches.

INCLUDING 18 WOMEN

Orange Co. Sheriff's Academy Graduates

Thirty-seven men and 18 women were graduated Friday from the Orange County Sheriff's Training Academy, as its largest class and the first to include women.

The tough course of academic and physical training covered 39 police science subjects and stretched over 290 hours of study in seven weeks.

Sheriff James A. Musick said that the 55 graduates were "survivors" from the original class accepted for Academy training. Fourteen men dropped out, but all 18 women stayed; they took the same academic and physical training regimen ordered for the men.

Other women deputies have been trained at the Academy, but always in a separate class.

Sheriff Musick assigned all 55 graduates to additional training for duty in the jail complex opening in two months. Sheriff's deputies, they now will undergo four weeks of specialized training for work in the men's and women's jails.

Deputy John P. Hewitt of Santa Ana, who scored highest for over-all ability, was chosen as president of the graduating class. Jere E. Hyder of Tustin ranked highest in academic ability; Dan King of Huntington Beach was tops in physical ability, and Donald R. Lambert of Anaheim excelled in firearms use.

Unruh Aides Deny Knowing Defendant in Cheat Trial

United Press International

Two members of Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh's Sacramento staff Friday disputed earlier testimony that they had addressed Benjamin J. Teitelbaum, a defendant in the Friars Club cheating trial, as "Ben."

George E. Seach, the government's primary witness in the Los Angeles trial of five men accused of rigging card games at the posh Beverly Hills club, had testified previously that Teitelbaum had lobbied on his behalf to help him avoid a prison sentence for a 1962 burglary conviction.

Seach had said that he and Teitelbaum had visited

Unruh's office in the state Capitol building on May 3, 1963, but that the speaker had been tied up and was unable to see them. Seach said Unruh's secretary had greeted the pair with, "Ben, how are you?"

Teitelbaum's attorney, Clarence L. Hunt, called Mrs. Bette Coffey, Unruh's administrative secretary, and Miss Edith McNair, his legislative secretary, to the witness box.

Both denied they saw Teitelbaum and Seach and both said they did not recall their coming to Unruh's office on the date mentioned.

The secretaries' testimony was allowed to interrupt the appearance of one of the other defendants, Maurice H. Friedman.

Two Protesters Sue L.A. for $2 Million

The City of Los Angeles and five police officers were sued for $2,005,977 false arrest and assault damages Friday by two men who participated in demonstrations at Manual Arts High School last fall.

The superior court complaint was brought by John Clifford Floyd, 24, a teacher, and Ronald Leroy Wilkins, 22, both Los Angeles.

They claimed they were arrested Oct. 24 in front of the south central Los Angeles school and charged with loitering. Municipal court records showed a jury acquitted them last Jan. 3.

The men charged they were arrested in "bad faith" and to "oppress" them in their efforts to promote the betterment of the Negro race.

Floyd sought a total of $1,003,737 damages and Wilkins, $1,002,240.

The officers named in the suit were Joe P. Johnson, T. R. Blaire, D. R. Vandervort, J. E. Barrett and L. J. Hinrichs.

The suit contended the men were arrested in order to embarrass them and to interfere with their future employment.

Jam Court at Trial of Protesters

Associated Press

More than 120 supporters of 13 men accused of conspiracy to stage walkouts at predominantly Mexican-American schools jammed the Hall of Justice Friday as the case came up in court. Twenty picketed in an orderly demonstration.

Superior Court Judge Kathleen Parker postponed arguments until Sept. 23 on a move to quash indictments against the men after their lawyers said they need more time to prepare their cases.

The lawyers claim the indictments should be thrown out because people with Spanish names have been underrepresented on the County Grand Jury.

BOAT OWNER, 1st RESCUER NEED SAVING

Calvin Earl, 21, of 48 Orange Ave. and the owner of a capsized kayak were rescued by a county lifeguard off Palos Verdes Friday after Earl's initial attempt to aid the boater failed.

Russell Payne, 32, of Redondo Beach, pulled Earl and Jeffrey Chase, 20, of 25922 Pennsylvania Ave., Lomita, to safety after Chase's kayak overturned near the Marineland pier.

Earl, swimming near the pier, went to Chase's rescue, but both men found themselves unable to deal with the rough water.

Payne, a part-time lifeguard, dove into the water from a rescue boat and aided the two men, who were later treated for shock.

$75,000 to Tot in Auto Death of Kin

A 3-year-old girl, orphaned when her parents burned to death in a 1966 "Slaughter Alley" accident, Friday, was awarded $75,000 in damages by a Los Angeles Superior Court jury.

Another plaintiff, Mrs. Luis M. Arizmendi, was awarded $5,000 damages by the same jury. Her husband, bus boy Francisco Arizmendi, 31, also perished in the Feb. 21, pileup in which six persons were killed.

The $75,000 award went to Debra Lorraine Fresh, who now lives with her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Fresh, of 1263 Greentree Ave., Garden Grove.

The couple had demanded $500,000 from Pacific Motor Trucking, Food Giant Markets and System Leasing Corp. for the death of their son James Dalton Fresh, 24, and his wife, Mary Alice, 19, who were trapped inside their car in the pileup on Highway 101 near Oceanside.

The two cases had been consolidated in Superior Court Judge Sidney W. Kaufman's Los Angeles courtroom.

Police Copter Down in Dry L.A. Riverbed

A Los Angeles Police Department helicopter made a forced landing late Friday in the Los Angeles River, one-half mile south of the Glendale Freeway.

The two-man craft developed engine trouble and was set down in the dry riverbed near Elysian Park. No injuries were reported and the craft was not damaged.

MINORITIES REPRESENTED ON PROJECT

From Our L.A. Bureau

Negroes account for 40 per cent of the work force constructing the county's new King General Hospital in Willowbrook.

The racial breakdown on the construction crews, made public Friday by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, was credited to a firm policy of hiring persons of all ethnic groups.

Mexican-Americans represent 11 per cent of the working force, Caucasians the rest.

Girl Helps Police Nab 3 in Holdup

A quick-thinking 12-year-old girl teamed up with police Friday to help capture three men suspected of stealing $34,000 from a branch of the Bank of America here.

Motorcycle Officers Don Brown and Harry Mintey stopped a green pickup truck containing the three suspects on the Ventura Freeway shortly after the holdup.

Brenda Paris of Burbank was sitting in her parents' car in a parking lot near the bank when three men, one carrying a gun, drove up in a truck and entered the bank.

Brenda ran to a gas station and told the attendant to telephone police.

Brown and Mintey arrived just as the suspects sped away.

"There go the robbers," Brenda yelled, giving police the license number of the truck. The officers said they fired one bullet, which struck the vehicle, when they caught up with the truck.

U.S. Hearing Set on Crash of Helicopter

A public hearing on the crash of a Los Angeles Airways helicopter which killed 23 persons in Paramount May 22 is scheduled for Sept. 25 in Los Angeles.

The National Transportation Safety Board will conduct the hearing at which about 17 persons are expected to testify. The hearing had been set for Aug. 21, but was delayed after a second helicopter crash in Compton Aug. 14 in which 21 persons died.

Oscar M. Laurel, a member of the safety board, will serve as chairman of the board of inquiry.

"Metal fatigue" which caused a main rotor blade to break in flight had been blamed for the Aug. 14 crash of a Sikorsky S-61 jet powered helicopter en route to Disneyland from international airport.

Reagan Reiterates Budget Economies

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan asked business leaders Friday to continue support for hard state budget economies and said his businessman's task force already has prompted $17 million in savings.

"We have started something here in the nature of a prairie fire," Reagan told a state Chamber of Commerce breakfast sponsored by Sacramento members for leaders from throughout the state.

REAGAN said his administration has adopted 514 of more than 1,400 recommendations made by the special task force for "a potential annual savings" of nearly $128 million.

He said 514 other task force recommendations have been approved but it is up to the Legislature to act on 55 of them.

The governor made no direct appeal for Republican votes in November to end Democratic control of the Legislature. But he criticized these "who will stop at nothing to stop this experiment" in economy.

"Do not let this experiment fail here in California," Reagan told the audience of about 650.

Reagan already had used the term "prairie fire" in his 1966 campaign for governor.

'DID' OR 'DIDN'T' Dispute Delays Trial of Newton

OAKLAND (AP) — The jury trying Black Panther Huey Newton on a charge of murdering a white policeman ended Friday deliberations without a verdict and will resume its study today.

A row over whether a key witness said "did" or "didn't" delayed the start of Friday's deliberations until afternoon.

With the jury excluded, Newton's lawyer contended that in a statement to police Negro bus driver Henry Grier said he "didn't" get a clear look at Newton's face in the Oct. 28 shooting in which officer John Frey was killed.

Superior Court Judge Monroe Friedman got the transcript, which defense attorney Charles Garry himself had put into the record, and read it aloud, verifying that it said Grier did see Newton clearly.

THE judge then overruled Garry's motion to correct the record, but said the recording of Grier's statement would be put into the trial record "for identification," but not as evidence.

Garry contended the other copies of the transcript had the word "didn't," but the judge said, "I am not going to reopen this case. All the evidence is in and the case was closed last Wednesday."

The jury then resumed listening to a lengthy re-reading of Grier's courtroom testimony that he saw Newton draw a pistol and shoot officer Frey, who had stopped Newton's car.

After more than three hours of re-reading, the jury was sent to lunch and told to resume deliberations.

It received the case Thursday after eight weeks of trial.

A FEW black-jacketed, black-bereeted Panthers stood near a side entrance to the courthouse. A half-block away a white youth sat near a sign lettered "Huey Newton Vigil."

Inside, the tiny courtroom was only half full as reporter Martha Harms read the transcript in low tones.

Foreman David B. Harper, the only Negro on the jury of five men and seven women, leaned forward with other jurors in intense concentration.

Newton sat quietly attentive at the counsel table.

The prosecution charged that Newton, 26, who organized the militant Black Panther Negro group two years ago, killed officer Frey and wounded officer Herbert Heanes after his car had been stopped on the street.

Newton, who was wounded in the abdomen, denied that he had a pistol or ever shot anyone.

ence" and especially can be a trigger to violence in "certain" distorted minds. "I will have none of it."

That was his theme in opening remarks to his morning press conference. Candidates have, he said, "a positive duty to 'cool it' to avoid the possibly dangerous escalation" in the rather brooding climate of violence in California and the country. "we have too many loose nuts running around this country looking for excuses."

The appeal of third-party presidential candidate George C. Wallace lies "very largely in the area of race," said Rafferty, adding Wallace would get a lot of votes. "and I regret it." Wallace should have run within the two-party framework, he said, specifically in his own party, Democratic.

RAFFERTY said Wallace had taken his "stand up America theme" from the Rafferty campaign and that the late Sen. Robert Kennedy had taken the Rafferty philosophy on tax incentives to private business for solving ghetto problems.

Advised Kennedy had published that position in a book some time ago, Rafferty said that, if true, it proves Kennedy "was a very thoughtful man."

GOP presidential standard bearer Richard Nixon does have campaign weaknesses, but is overcoming them nicely. He cited the possible loser's image, "he had a bad television image... perhaps a too grim, too serious approach."

Rafferty, with Nixon Thursday, said he had not seen the slightest trace of that shortcoming in the candidate and he now was "warm and relaxed."

He emphatically said, "Yes, sir" when asked if Nixon would beat Vice President Hubert Humphrey in debate, adding "almost anybody in public life would."

HUMPHREY is a part of the problem, Rafferty said, in reference to ending the Vietnam war. He said it will take new faces, not those "locked and frozen in preconceived postures."

Rafferty said he would welcome the vote of Wallace voters, the John Birch

Society and any other voter "who buys my philosophy — that's the name of the game."

In his Town Hall speech, Rafferty attacked administration trade with Communist nations in strategic items such as jet engines, radar and computers. He said he does not want to see his Air Force son, now serving at Luke Field, Phoenix, Ariz., if he gets to Vietnam "trying to outfly our own jets or out-guess our own computers."

Answering a later question, Rafferty said such strategic shipments were documented in a recent protest advertisement by Young Americans for Freedom, and included Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria.

THE PUEBLO incident is "spilt milk," Rafferty said, but we should have, within 24 hours of that piratical act taken over and destroyed North Korean property of equivalent value. He said you can't negotiate with hijackers. If the crew is returned tomorrow, he said, "brainwashed as they probably will be, this has been a damnable disgrace to this country."

Asked who should define obscenity and who should do the censoring, Rafferty said, "the same group that has always done it—all of you. You select and appoint through the democratic process, those who decide (these matters) in your name."

Rafferty first declined comment on Chicago Mayor Daley's direction of police in Chicago during the Democratic convention, but told newsmen he conducted the convention "like an orchestra leader."

However, before the Town Hall audience, he made reference to the televised Mayor Daley, "his face contorted, urging his police on in Chicago."

THOSE POLICE and news reporters, he told his audience, "are just plain guys—not demons, not angels. Even Huntley and Brinkley are not angels."

Quered on why news media give precedence to "rioters, thugs and traitors," Rafferty replied, "They give us the news we want to see most... they are guilty of pandering to what we are guilty of wanting."

many glass and rock fragments.

The jar containing the poisonous spiders was tossed into an automobile.

Police reported Friday that only one of the 161 patrolmen injured in the disturbances remained in a hospital. One National Guardsman who was struck by a brick also remained in a hospital.

SUPT. JAMES B. Conlisk of the Chicago Police Dept., said Friday in an interview with Chicago's American that his men "stood up tremendously under the constant pressure, the constant insults and gives and physical attacks that were made upon them."

"They did not react violently," Conlisk said. "Whatever force was used against an individual who had precipitated an attack. There was no calculated attempt to prevent news media from alerting their stories. Attacks on newsmen were regrettable but not premeditated. We've had complaints from 22 newsgatherers of harassment and physical attack. These are all being investigated by our internal investigating division."

Meanwhile, Mayor Richard J. Daley said Friday that disturbances during the Democratic National Convention were planned well in advance by revolutionaries intent upon disrupting the convention and toppling the society's institutions.

Daley issued a 50-page report with 26 pages of appendices prepared in response to charges that police used excessive force in dealing with demonstrators and without provocation beat newsmen and bystanders.

THE REPORT says that despite "the guerrilla and psychological tactics which were employed by these revolutionaries" only a few serious incidents erupted.

"As is so often the case," the report stated, "the trusting, the innocent, and the idealist were taken in and taken over."

The report says the news media also "responded with surprising naivete and were incredibly misused."

"The leaders of the dissident movement are nationally known agitators who had arrived fresh from triumphs at Berkeley and Columbia," the report states.

Of the 641 persons arrested during the week, the report said "an overwhelming majority... were not youngsters, were not students and were not Chicagoans."

THEY WERE adult troublemakers who came into the city of Chicago for the avowed purpose of a hostile confrontation with law enforcement," it says.

Despite what the report calls the "unpopular views espoused by the dissident groups and the notorious background of their leaders," it says city officials sought to protect their rights of assembly and free speech.

Demonstrators insisted on receiving permission to sleep in parks and to march on the International Amphitheatre, site of the convention.

The city adamantly refused, and demonstrators leaders led down alternate march routes.

The new blaze, which spread through Brown's Canyon and the Mormon Canyon area, surrounded a lookout tower on Oat Mountain, sped through oil fields and endangered microwave transmission equipment in the vicinity.

Several ranches on the north ridge of Oat Mountain were in the path of the fire, but were not in immediate danger.

Montreal's Lottery Falls Short of Goals

MONTREAL (AP) — Montreal's city lottery, which officials insist on calling a voluntary tax plan, is falling short of its goal.

The city took in $4,055,000 in the first four months of operation, far short of the $10,400,000 planned.

In return for a $2 contribution to the city, participants receive a chance at 151 monthly prizes totaling $150,000. The city's goal is to meet in expected budgetary deficit of $28 million this fiscal year.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — About 200 University of Michigan students were arrested Friday after they refused to leave the Washtenaw County office building which they had occupied for the second straight day in support of welfare mothers' demands for more money.

An estimated 1,000 college students marched to the building earlier in the day, but most had left and waited outside as closing time approached.

Most of those arrested walked peacefully from the building and climbed into the waiting police buses. A few had to be carried from the building by the more than 250 police officers pressed into service from Washtenaw County and two surrounding counties.

Though the sit-in was in support of the welfare mothers, none of the women were present inside the building when the arrests were made.

About 800 persons, mostly students, milled around outside the building and began raising money for the $25 bond to free each of those arrested.

The students were asked to leave the lobby of the county building by Sheriff Douglas Harvey who then shouted: "Let's go. Move them out. Stand them up. Get them out of here."

"Around the World of Mike Todd," Sunday night on Ch. 7, touches on the high spots of the fabulous showman's career. Elizabeth Taylor, who was his wife at the time, he was killed in an air crash, will appear throughout the hour and Orson Welles will narrate.

"Peyton Place" which has been new throughout the summer, moves to its new regular 8:30 p.m. Monday (and Wednesday) and Wally Cox Monday night stars in a "mini-special," "What Gap?" The gap is, of course, the generation gap, and Cox experiments with the things that separate the "old" from the "young." Ch. 2 Monday night also has "High and Higher," Attorneys at Law" which stars Dustin Hoffman as a district attorney.

CH. 4 HAS Fred Gwyn playing a suburbanite who builds strange things in his basement laboratory in "Guess What I Did Today" on Tuesday night, and Ch. 2, "The Football Scholars," a special on how colleges attract outstanding high school football players.

"Music Hall" opens its fall season Wednesday on Ch. 4 with Don Rickles, Alan King and Eddy Arnold, and Sir John Gielgud stars in "To Chekhov, With Love," a 90-minute drama, on Ch. 2.

Thursday night Ch. 4 will open its season of original "On Stage" dramas, with Rod Serling's "Certain Honorable Men," starring Van Heflin as a U.S. congressman.

'Petticoat' Kids Have Junction at the Altar

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — If you cried at the wedding of Betty Jo and Steve on "Petticoat Junction" last season, you may shed still another tear today when the characters get married in real life.

Off screen Betty Jo, the delightful strawberry blonde, is Linda Kaye Henning, producer of "My Three Sons," "Family Affair" and "The Lawrence Welk Show" — also going strong.

Linda and Mike have been dating for a couple of years. Their marriage will bring together two prominent television families from — of all places — Kansas City, Mo.

LINDA is the daughter of Paul Henning who originated "The Beverly Hillbillies," "Green Acres" and "Petticoat Junction" — all still on the air.

Mike's father is Don Feddersen, producer of "My Three Sons," "Family Affair" and "The Lawrence Welk Show" — also going strong.

Between them, the fathers of the bride and bridegroom have six shows in the top 20 among the ratings.

The youngsters met by chance when Mike played a guest spot on the show a couple of years ago, adding coincidence to the merging of the families.

Both Feddersen and Henning are Kansas City boys, but hadn't met one another in Hollywood until their offspring got the trembles for one another.

Moreover, Linda's mother and Mike's father were in the class at Kansas City's Central High.

HARBOR CHEVROLET

A clever engineer just invented a talking mechanical brain. He asked a friend to test it by asking it a question. The fellow asked, "Where is my father?" The machine answered, "Your father is fishing in Michigan." "I told you it's no good," said the quizzical questioner, "cuz my father's been dead 20 years!"

Very puzzled, the inventor said, "Well, ask the question another way." "OK," replied the inquisitive enquirer. "Where is my mother's husband?" With great speed the machine answered, "Your mother's husband has been dead for 20 years, but YOUR FATHER IS STILL FISHING IN MICHIGAN!"

'Miss America' Theme Will Be Heard After All

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — At the 11th hour, the producers of tonight's "Miss America Pageant" made peace with the composer of the show's theme song, and Bert Parks as usual will croon "There She Is, Miss America."

For a while it seemed that the pageant, televised annually since 1954, would just not be the same. Composer Bernie Wayne and the pageant management disagreed about royalties for the song and it was decided to drop it.

Parks has been master of ceremonies and official baritone since 1955.

395,000 Flood Orange Co. Public Schools

Attendance at Orange County's 444 public schools Tuesday will jump seven per cent over last year as almost 395,000 schoolchildren go back to their books.

The 15,000-strong teacher force will be short only 44 teachers, a record low, says J. E. Schumaker of the county schools office.

As of Friday, recruitment topped 2,800 new teachers — many from out of state — since California's production of new teachers could not keep pace with the demand.

Schumaker warned, however, more than 44 classrooms may be short teachers Tuesday.

He said there are always last-minute resignations.

Private and parochial schools will have a similar percentage increase in pupils to an estimated 50,000 this year, according to Dr. Robert D. Peterson Jr., county superintendent of schools.

The private schools have about 1,700 teachers and administrators.

School officials said private schools also had trouble recruiting new teachers.

School Employees Given Pep Talks

Classified employees of the Long Beach Unified School District held a "back to school" meeting Friday in Millikan High School Auditorium to hear three speakers.

W. Odie Wright, district superintendent, challenged the employees to join teachers in taking "society's most precious possession, its children," and developing in them the "individual capabilities to the utmost."

Wright was the last speaker on a program which included Associate Supts. Francis Laufenberg and Vernon A. Hinz.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wallace, president of the Board of Education, presided and delivered greetings, as did Mrs. James Spencer, president of the city's PTA Council.

The annual meeting of Long Beach district teachers is scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

'Everybody Wantsta Get Inta da Act...'

Picketing Jimmy Durante sounds like being against motherhood, apple pie and the flag but that's what 20 to 30 persons will be doing when the official Los Angeles birthday parade steps out at 10 this morning in San Pedro.

Representatives of the Citizens Committee to Save Cabrillo Beach said Friday they would picket the parade, of which Durante is grand marshal.

Mrs. Pat Herrera, chairman of the committee, said the money used by the city on the parade could have been "better used" in improving beach facilities.

The parade, scheduled to last about 90 minutes, will proceed from 12th and Pacific streets through the heart of San Pedro. The route is north on Pacific to Fifth Street, east to Palos Verdes Street, south to Sixth Street, east to Sampson Way and southeast on Nagoya Avenue past the Ports O'Call Village and Whalers Wharf, disbanding at the Fisherman's Cooperative Building.

More than 100 units are scheduled to participate including 15 marching groups. Miss Los Angeles World, 18-year-old Karen Dumouchelle, will preside as part of the pomp and pageantry.

MRS. LORAIN MILLER PRESIDES

Children's Hospital Ground Broken

"I hope that all the children who are patients within these walls will find healing and love, and go out the door with hope renewed to meet the world of tomorrow."

So said Mrs. Loraine Miller, wife of philanthropist Earl Burns Miller, at the three-stage groundbreaking of the $4 million Earl and Loraine Miller Children's Memorial Hospital Medical Center.

"Many of you have dreamed the dream, many of you have helped in the planning for a children's hospital medical center for our community," Mrs. Miller said.

"Now is just the beginning of the reality for which we all must continue to work."

The children's center, expected to open in 1970, will house 76 beds. Each birch-paneled room will have a library, wall-to-wall carpeting, color television, blackboards, desks and toys.

The crowd at Friday's hour-long ceremony gave a standing ovation to Mrs. Miller, who pledged the money for building and equipping the facility.

"May I thank you for rising when my name was called," she said, "I know it was a tribute for Earl."

Earl Burns Miller died last January, shortly after the couple pledged $1 million toward construction of the hospital.

"Our thoughts go forward to people caring for children, to ill and injured children becoming well again, to children going home again to grow up to live happy and healthy lives," Mrs. Miller said.

A miniature, symbolic groundbreaking was enacted by children in a sandbox as part of the festivities.

Part of the hospital's fifth floor was cut away and removed by concrete "surgeons."

Civic leaders addressed more than 500 guests.

And the entire production was telecast privately to the hospital's patients over a $20,000 closed-circuit TV system.

After the speeches, Mrs. Miller pulled a cord which unveiled a sandbox containing four small children digging in the sand.

One of the youngsters, 4-year-old Amir Bacchus, son of a Memorial Hospital resident physician, ran up to the speakers platform and handed his sandpail to Mrs. Miller.

Moments later, R. J. Munzer president of the hospital's board of directors, gave a signal over a walkie-talkie radio and a workman on the top floor began using a blowtorch to slice through the remaining structural bonds of the hospital's fifth floor solarium.

Then, the concrete separated, and a giant crane lifted off a chunk of concrete and steel — first stage in linking corridors between the existing hospital and the forthcoming children's hospital.

The crane slowly lowered the concrete segment to the ground and the construction of the children's hospital was officially under way.

Urge Price Hike on Tideland Oil

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Unless the major oil companies increase the price paid for crude oil from the local tidelands, anticipated city and state proceeds will "continue to deteriorate," City Auditor Murray T. Courson said Friday.

In his annual audit of the Department of Oil Properties and the Tideland Oil Revenue Fund, Courson said the magnitude of the potential revenue loss "will be even greater" in the future.

Courson pointed out there has been no change in the posted price for crude oil affecting local operations since July 1, 1963.

He said there is evidence that crude-oil prices actually have decreased, despite steadily rising costs.

The posted price for 16-degree gravity oil in February 1967 was $2.84 a barrel, while the current price is only $2.02, Courson said.

Oil revenues to the City of Long Beach, including both tideland trust and nontrust properties, had totaled $595.6 million through the end of the audit, which was June 30, 1967, Courson reported.

Total crude oil produced during the same period was 523.6 million barrels, he said.

Gross revenues from tideland-trust oil from first production through June 30, 1967, totaled $894 million, the auditor said.

Since Feb. 1, 1956, the State of California has received $259.9 million as its share of the tideland revenue, he said.

4 Japanese Ships Due Into L.B.

Akizuki, Harusame, Ayunami and Uranami will be Long Beach Naval Station visitors today and Sunday.

And their arrival won't go unnoticed.

The flagship of the Japanese destroyer squadron will fire 13 guns for Rear Adm. Horace V. Bird, commander of the U.S. Naval Base and Pacific Mine Force, as they enter the harbor, mooring at Pier 7.

The visitors' salute will be returned, so shoreside residents will get 26 blasts about 9:15 a.m.

The Japanese ships are a training squadron, manned by 1,100 men, including 160 newly commissioned ensigns. About 20 Japanese Defense Agency civilians and reporters are traveling with the ships.

Rear Adm. Shushiro Okawa, squadron commander traveling aboard Akizuki, will hold a press conference at 10:15 a.m.

Host ships for the Japanese are the missile frigate USS Reeves and destroyers Mansfield, Hollister and Higbee.

On Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the Japanese vessels will be open to the public, prior to their departure Monday for Pearl Harbor.

Man Shot in Tavern Theft Dies

A 27-year-old man, shot four times by trigger-happy bandits outside a Long Beach bar, died Friday at St. Mary's Hospital.

Gary K. Jonasson of 6950 Parkcrest St. was gunned down Aug. 24 after he stayed late at Lucky's Dollhouse, 1400 Cherry Ave., to help the bartender close the tavern.

Police said the bartender, James E. Hutcheson, 37, asked Jonasson to leave with him after two suspicious-looking men left the bar. Jonasson, Hutcheson and two other persons were accosted in the parking lot.

The robbers ordered their victims to lie down on the pavement, but when Jonasson was slow responding, they shot him.

They took only $6 from Hutcheson's wallet.

Transplant Donor Laid to Rest Today —Heart Beats On

Although Paul Craig Mason will be laid to rest in Westminster Memorial Park this morning, his heart beats on in Houston, giving life to a 47-year-old Texas toolmaker.

While funeral services are conducted for young Mason at 9:30 a.m. at Mottell's Mortuary in Long Beach, it's likely the man who received his heart in the world's 41st transplant operation will be enjoying a new color television set at St. Luke's Hospital in Houston.

Mason, 17, was declared medically dead by Long Beach doctors after a motorcycle accident Monday, and his parents, Dale Mason and Mrs. Charlene E. Duden, decided to donate their son's heart to give another man life.

THE RECIPIENT, James Elbert Singleton of Fort Worth, had a long history of heart disease and has entered Houston Methodist Hospital Aug. 28. Dr. Michael DeBakey directed the team of surgeons that performed the transplant Thursday.

Ted Bowen of the St. Luke's Hospital administrative staff said Singleton ate "a very good meal of butter milk and cornbread" Friday.

"He sat up to review an electrocardiogram of his new heart with his doctors," Bowen said.

"He'll be getting a color TV set to watch in just a few hours."

In Long Beach, the Rev. Donald O'Connor, pastor of the First Methodist Church, will conduct services for young Mason, who had been living with his father at the Pacific Coast Club, 850 E. Ocean Ave.

The boy — whom neurosurgeons gave no chance to live after the accident — had been attending Georgia Military College in Milledgeville before coming to Long Beach.

He and his father were living at the club until they could move into a home the elder Mason purchased on Apian Way.

FOR BURN VICTIM $2.50 Lifesaver

All great advances in medicine are not being accomplished with multimillion-dollar devices in huge surgical amphitheaters.

A 13-year-old burn victim at Anaheim's Martin Luther Hospital is making good progress—with the aid of a $2.50 swimmer's snorkel device.

Norman Bell was badly burned Aug. 25 in an explosion when he attempted to light a backyard barbecue.

At the hospital, he was placed in intensive care where Dr. Frank Harding recommended treatments in swirling, sodium-treated water.

"But it was impossible for him to remain with his head immersed in the pool for the required 20- to 25-minute treatment," Dr. Harding said.

Therapist Penny Morwood suggested a breathing device, and Dr. Harding, active in skin and scuba diving for almost 25 years, brought the snorkel tube from home.

Young Bell is doing "very well," hospital authorities said Friday.

Week's Wall Street Trend

AP Stock Review

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a burst of confidence in the immediate future for stocks and business as it racked up an impressive gain in the first post Labor Day week.

Labor Day, traditionally the start of a new year for business and the market, served once again as an apparent turning point. The stock market made its biggest advance in three months.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 8.0 to 341.1, its largest weekly gain since the week ended June 8 when it rose 9.8.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 25.24 to 921.25. This put the closely watched indicator near its 1968 closing high of 923.72, posted July 15. The question in Wall Street was whether the market next week could overcome expected resistance in this critical area and move on to a new high for the year.

Volume for the four-day trading week, shortened by Monday's holiday was 44,849,810 compared with 38,592,280 for the four-day trading week preceding.

What was Wall Street telling the financial world? In the opinion of some analysts, the market was saying that the powerful momentum generated by business in the first half would not be dampened too much by the effects of the 10 per cent income surtax.

"While a number of glamor issues have flashed some dramatic fireworks this week, it has been the soberly valued blue-chip stocks that have carried the brunt of leadership, and we envision a continuation of this trend," said Bache & Co.

The week's advance in the stock market got under way slowly and hesitatingly. As one analyst noted, however, for the past month or so stock prices have been climbing steadily higher "against a wall of pessimism."

The trading week began with an advance Tuesday, but volume was light, reflecting little exuberance in Wall Street.

"The market seems to be in a kind of twilight zone," one analyst said Tuesday. "It seems too late to sell and too early to buy."

JOHN ARMSTRONG

Lomita Man New Head of 'Crusade'

John Armstrong, vice president and general manager of the Lomita Gasoline Co., will act as campaign chairman for the United Crusade's 1968 drive in Signal Hill, it was announced Friday.

Announcement was made jointly by Jess (Bud) Holton and Paul Nichol, chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of the campaign for the Long Beach Area drive, of which Signal Hill is a part.

Armstrong, a member of the Long Beach Rotary Club, worked in the 1966 and 1967 campaigns of the Crusade in the Business and Industry Division.

He joins Lakewood Mayor Mark Hanna and Long Beach Naval Shipyard executive John Hanna, who head the campaigns in their respective cities.

Chairmen for Bellflower and Paramount are scheduled to be announced soon, Holton and Nichol advised.

Coast Club 'Greeter' Rites Today

Friends may pay their final respects to Paul Patacsil — one of the two friendly greeters of Long Beach's Pacific Coast Club — from 4 to 9 p.m. today at McNerney Funeral Home in Wilmington.

Patacsil, who has worked for the club since 1948, died Thursday at age 60.

Patacsil, with fellow greeter Baquiao (Dick) Foustino, were best known for the care they give children at the club.

At Easter, Dick donned a costume and was the Easter Bunny, and Paul took small children by the hand and led them through the scary labyrinth downstairs in the castle-like building.

He was born in 1908 in the Philippines and came to America in 1927 after graduating from high school. He served in the Army in World War II from 1942 to 1946, and started to work for the club two years later.

He is survived by his wife, Francis Marie, of 915 Pioneer Ave., Wilmington, and six children — and the children of the Pacific Coast Club. Rosary and other rites will be private.

Funeral Monday for Paul Hess, Ex-L.B. Builder

Services for Paul Hess, former Long Beach paving and engineering contractor, have been set for Monday at 10 a.m. at Todd Memorial Mortuary of Pomona.

Hess, 54, fell out of a cable car Aug. 22 while crossing the Quiescent River of British Columbia to get to a mine he operated. His body was recovered from the river Monday.

He had formed the Hess Construction Co. in Long Beach in 1944 with his brothers, Frank and Wallace. In 1952 he switched his construction operations to the Pomona Valley and also took up mining.

Surviving are his wife, Irene, of Upland; daughters, Mrs. David C. Blumentstein and Mrs. Michael W. Federly of Long Beach and Patricia, Paula, Susan and Sarah Lee of Upland; mother, Mrs. Sarah Hess of Long Beach; brothers, Wallace, Lyle, Alan and Frank.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Agapanthus is a tuberous rooted perennial of the lily family. It is named from the Greek for love flower. Called Lily of the Nile, it is a native of Africa.

These easy-to-grow perennials may now need attention for two reasons.

old clumps; plants in the clump should be ruthlessly rooted apart, old knobby plants should be discarded, new ones replanted.

Soil must be rejuvenated where the clumps had grown before the young plants are reset into the ground. Mix some organic material with steamed bone

Do it five or six weeks in a row.

Buy some of these plants and set them out in your garden if you don't have any, because they don't need much fussing or care other than several feedings a year and copious drinks of water. Grow some in containers in the patio. The straplike arching foliage is interesting looking even when the plants aren't blooming.

Be sure to check up on several of the petite-dwarf varieties of agapanthus, too.

Those of you who have bare spaces in the sunny flower beds, yet have summer flowering annuals that are furnishing color and cut flowers, should plant some of the winter-spring blooming annuals.

Warm weather and mild nights forces them to grow faster, and they'll bloom earlier after the first of next year.

Two of the sun-loving annuals that grow the fastest and bloom the earliest are Iceland poppies and calendulas. The improved Iceland poppies are much larger-flowered and showier than the regular variety. These two types of plants may be set out in color-lack areas such as between the driveway and wall of the house or garden wall and walk, or a combination planting of them in a sunny flower bed, even near the back porch area. A row of them grows well in front of a green shrubs border, even though contending with the shrubby roots.

AGAPANTHUS . . . Easy to Grow if Done Correctly

There are several reasons why some gardeners have poor results growing small bedding plants. They fail to understand that the young plants growing together in a pony pak at the nursery are on a bench off the ground. The atmosphere is cooler than the dry soil with the sun unmercifully beating down.

The new plants that are set too deep in the ground are likely to die off, or those that survive grow poorly.

Those planted properly with the top surface of the root balls level with surrounding ground and a circular furrow around them to soak the soil well, still suffer from the surrounding dry soil and the sun.

That planted area should be sprinkled in early evening when weather is cooler and again in the early morning before the sun gets too hot. This should be done daily for the first week to gradually accustom the plants to their new location. Apply B-1 as recommended for agapanthus. Thereafter, water them.

Protect the newly set out plants by scattering snail-slug bait.

DO IT NOW

● CUT OUT fading dahlia flowers to encourage the young buds to get more light and air. Continue to deep-water.

● TRIM dead twigs and branches of deciduous fruit and shade trees before the foliage drops off for winter dormancy. The dead wood will be harder to distinguish from the live when these trees are leafless.

● REMOVE thickly set branches of evergreen shade trees.

● PLANT coral bells, foxgloves, cup and saucer canterbury bells and columbine, if you want blooms next year. Columbine prefer most shade; others should be planted in mostly shade in hot, dry areas but will grow in sun near coast.

● ATTACK oxalis weeds in dichondra lawn while weather still is warm, because they're growing actively. There are several herbicides, powder form and liquid, one may apply; or turf fertilizer containing such herbicide.

Plants growing long enough in the ground that haven't bloomed, may have too much shade. They need at least a half day of sun to blossom well. They'll stand full sun in mild areas.

Those getting sufficient sunlight and not blooming may be too thickly root matted, hence need a drastic operation. Dig up the meal throughout the soil and set out the plants

It's a good idea to use some horticultural vitamin B-1 when transplanting. The B-1 isn't a fertilizer, but helps cushion the shock of transplanting and stimulates new root growth. Apply the B-1 once a week, one of the times you'd normally water those plants.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Address all questions to Garden Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801. No stamps or self-addressed envelopes, please. Answers are given only in this column.

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Q. (1) I planted some gazanias from flats last year. We've had lots of beautiful yellow flowers since early this year. The plants still are blooming but fewer in number. Do I thin out some of my plants to insure good blooming for next season? (2) Some dichondra is growing in my Irish moss. It is difficult to weed out by hand. Is there any way I can easily get it out? N.T.H., Torrance.

A. (1) The plants should be thinned to a foot apart for best growth. (2) Tell your nurseryman you want a broad-leaf spray to kill dichondra in Irish moss. Be sure to read the directions on the container label. Use a clean sprayer, particularly if you've used another kind of an herbicide in it.

Q. (1) Why isn't more written about marguerites? I have six of them, so easy to grow and pretty. My nurseryman says they are annuals. I read somewhere they are perennials. Which are they? (2) Forget-me-nots are a favorite from childhood. Why can't I find started plants in this area? (3) I bought two purple-leaved plum trees last spring. They "set back" for quite a while. Finally one has come back with lots of purple leaves. The other just has a few green and red leaves. Why? Mrs. C. Kent Roberts.

A. (1) Reason more isn't written about marguerites is due possibly to lack of enough interest of the hobby gardeners. Marguerites are listed as perennials. They last about two years, get woody and are replaced by new plants. Some gardeners grow them only one year. Some of your marguerite branches that have fallen to the ground should not be staked and tied. Instead cut back the branches one-half their total length. (2) Forget-me-nots

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — The California Public Utilities Commission announced Friday it has granted Park Water Co. rate increases ranging from 7.6 to 25.6 per cent over the next three years.

The utility serves about 42,000 customers in portions of Artesia, Baldwin Park, Bell Gardens, Bellflower, Compton, Downey, Hawaiian Gardens, Lynwood, Montebello, Norwalk, Paramount, Pico Rivera, Santa Fe Springs, South Gate, and unincorporated areas in Gardena, La Mirada, Willowbrook, and an area west of Chino.

Strongbox Stolen

Burglars, using a pass-key, entered the Community Blood and Plasma Service Inc., 135 W. Ocean Blvd. and stole a strongbox containing $351, Long Beach police said Friday.

are available for fall planting. Tell your local nurseryman he can buy them for you from Perry's Plants wholesale grower in La Puente, also from Hi-Mark Nursery in Santa Ana. The plants usually are treated as annuals. Some that grow through into the next year are leggy, and don't like drastic pruning. Treat them as annuals for best growth and appearance. (3) Soil may be too loose even though you water regularly. Firmly tamp the soil around the trunk with shovel handle. If you settle the soil several inches below ground level, that's the trouble. Add more soil and firm again. Build ring of soil around tree to retain the water. Several months later take away this ring and dig a trench to soak the soil.

Q. Kindly check the enclosed samples of leaves and advise remedy to correct condition. The plum tree has been sprayed at 10-day intervals with general-purpose spray (systemic) about four times after infestation, but is spreading to the green-leaf tree next to it which has sprouted. (What kind of tree?) The other leaf is from mirror plant and about 30 per cent of plant is affected. Thomas D. Kelly.

A. Spray those plants that are skeletonized by pear slugs with a stomach-type spray such as chlordane or DDT. The other sprouted tree leaf looks much like the plum leaves.

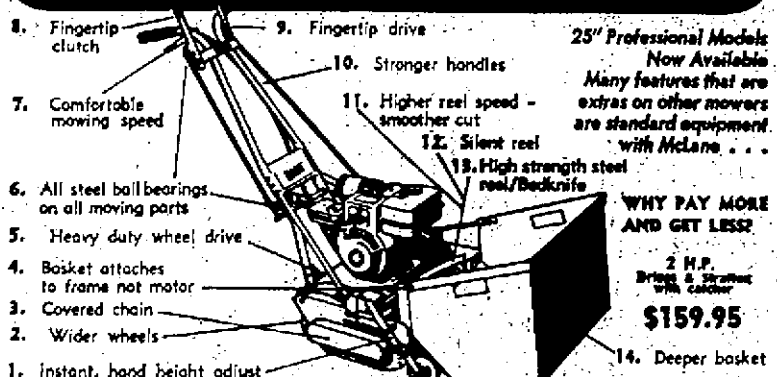

Q. What can be done to get rid of lawn moths in dichondra? My neighbor planted the seed and had a beautiful lawn but didn't mow it until it was too high. Finally when mowed it all mashed down. Now she's wondering how much water it needs and if it should be fertilized anymore at this time. Wray Lyons.

A. Have her nurseryman sell her a stomach-type insecticide spray for chewing pests. Read the directions carefully and apply as directed for cutworms in dichondra. An unmowed high dichondra lawn looks like the stubble of a freshly cut hay field, and is a yellow and brown color when it is mowed. It looks thusly for about four weeks, before new dichondra leaves grow out. Tell your neighbor to water it the same amount as she did before mowing it. Yes, it should be fertilized at this time.

Q. My lemon tree fruits all year long. Suddenly it started bleeding from the ground level to about 18 inches up. It is planted in a flower bed, and is over 10 years old. Any suggestions for the cause of the bleeding? H. G. Edgecomb.

A. "Bleeding" probably refers to gummy substance oozing out of the bark that has split, which is a bacterial disease. It may be caused by root injury; a contributory cause may be constant dampness of the soil around the trunk.

DR. J. H. JACKSON
Church Leader
Blasts Negro
'KKK' Tactics

ALANTA, Ga. (AP) — Negro churchman Dr. J. H. Jackson, leader of the 6.3 million National Baptists, said the civil rights struggle as originally planned has been lost and the American Negro "is now regarded as one of the most dangerous threats to the orderly conduct and growth of American life."

Jackson said he most tragic loss in the civil rights struggle has been the rejection of integration by many Negroes who now preach separatism.

"Further, our own intelligent Negro young people in this separatist movement are preaching the same gospel, that the Ku Klux Klan has preached," Jackson said.

His remarks were in a speech to the annual meeting of the National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., Inc., of which he is president.

Jackson, who opposes civil disobedience, denounced what he described as some white liberals "who are determined to use the Negro race to help them divide and destroy the unity, fellowship and life of this nation."

Jackson said the civil rights fight as originally planned has been lost because its objectives were complete integration under the Federal Constitution without Negroes becoming "the apostles of segregation or the messengers of hate and malcontent."

The fight has been lost psychologically, he said, because many have lost faith in the nation and its will to grant first class citizenship.

Jackson said the nonviolent aspect of the struggle has been lost in the rioting of recent years.

He said the civil rights movement has lost many white liberals who joined it for the proper motives, but other white liberals have moved in with the aim of setting black against white. He did not further describe these "white liberals."

Jackson called for Negroes to consolidate gains and exercise political power while continuing a program of integration.

He called on all Americans to "put the nation first" and support the ideals, principles and just laws of the land.

Giving his reasons for pronouncing the civil rights struggle's original goals lost, Jackson said, "The American Negro has now lost the image that he once had as an innocent, helpless, yet deserving and worthy creature who needed only a chance. He is now regarded as one of the most dangerous threats to the orderly conduct and growth of American life."

An unexpected visitor was Rev. Ralph Abernathy, president of the Southern Leadership Conference and successor of the slain Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

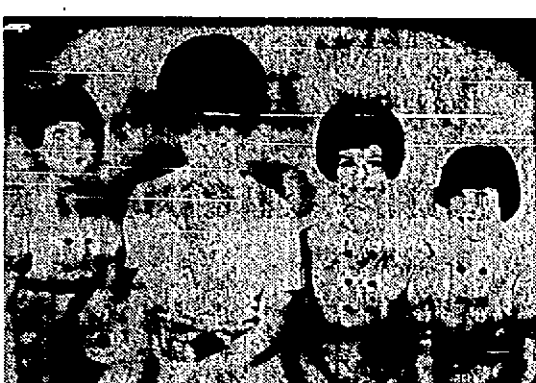

Abernathy and SCLC board of directors chairman Joseph E. Lowery

UCC CANCELS
CONVENTIONS
IN CHICAGO

CLEVELAND (UPI) — A conference of executives of the United Church of Christ, voted Friday not to hold any church meetings in Chicago until there are assurances citizens would be protected "from harassment by Chicago police."

"The conference and national executives of the United Church of Christ, in view of eyewitness reports from one of our respected leaders of violence directed at young people and clergy in Chicago during the Democratic National Convention, agrees that the United Church of Christ will not hold meetings in Chicago... until redress and changes are made to guarantee the democratic right of assembly and freedom of movement and to protect citizens from harassment by Chicago police," a statement said.

Everett Parker, director of communications said the church holds "dozens" of meetings in Chicago and Cleveland every year because of the concentration of members in the Midwest.

GOSPEL CONCERTS OPEN TONIGHT

Mormon Leader, 94, Gives Views

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UPI) — Approaching his 95th birthday on Sunday, President David O. McKay, of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, remains in love with life.

"I love life," the white-haired churchman observed. "I think it is a joy to live in this age."

He planned to spend his birthday in a quiet observance with his wife, Emma Rae, and members of their family. The McKays celebrated their 67th wedding anniversary last January.

With characteristic emphasis on the importance of the family, McKay told reporters, "When one puts business or pleasure, or the earning of additional income, above his home, he that moment starts on the downgrade."

"A great need," he added, "perhaps the greatest need, of the family today is more religion."

He has maintained an active interest in world affairs, and emphasized again this week, "free agency is a gift of God," a theme familiar to the 2.6 million Mormons over whom he has presided for 17½ years.

ONLY 8TH SINCE 1888
1st Congregational Will Greet New Pastor Sunday

Rev. Dr. Duane L. Day, one of the leading young ministers in the United Church of Christ, will preach his first sermon Sunday as new pastor of historic First Congregational Church.

Replacing the retired Dr. Emerson G. Hangen, he is only the eighth pastor—or senior minister, as Congregationalists prefer—at the church at "Third and Cedar" since its founding in 1888.

The 39-year-old minister comes to Long Beach from New Jersey, where as associate conference minister for the denomination's Central Atlantic Conference he was senior administrative official for the state.

PRIOR to that, Dr. Day held pastorates in Michigan and Ohio. Educated at Wayne State University, Andover Newton Theological School and Union Theological Seminary, he has held professorships in psychology and biblical studies at General Motors Institute in Flint, Mich., and Crozier Theological Seminary in Chester, Pa. He is co-author of "Urban Church Breakthrough," a book published by Harper & Row in 1966, and has written widely in church publications.

While in Michigan the versatile cleric also wrote pamphlets in the field of industrial management, preventative maintenance and safety, published by Buick Motors Division of General Motors, as well as an article on "Job Training and Retraining" in Professional Engineer.

In Cleveland, Rev. Day was minister of Metropolitan Strategy for the United Church of Christ in northern Ohio. In Jersey, he was secretary of the board of directors of the Campus Christian Foundation at Rutgers University, and president of the United Church Homes of New Jersey. Last year he was elected president of the Church Plan Commission for the New York-New Jersey-Connecticut Metropolitan Region.

DR. DUANE DAY
Author, Professor

ACTIVE in community and ecumenical affairs, he has served the Mayor's Commission on Human Relations in Flint, the Inner City Protestant Parish of Cleveland, was secretary of the Emergency committee of Clergy for Civil Rights in Cleveland, and was a consultant at the second assembly of the World Council of Churches.

The family, including his wife Patricia, son Kevin, 6, and daughter Pat, 4, has taken up residence at 6215 E. Fifth St.

Topic of Dr. Day's first sermon Sunday 10 a.m. at the 1,400-member church is "We Have This Ministry."

Rev. Dwight A. Hoelscher, who has served as acting senior minister since

Dr. Hangen's departure, will resume his post as associate minister, including responsibility for youth work.

L.B. Samoans Host

The Second Samoan Congregational Church of Long Beach last Sunday hosted six other Samoan congregations celebrating the bringing of the Christian gospel to Samoa in 1830. The group meets in First Congregational and hopes to build its own church plant.

CLIPPINGS by CLIFTON
Two weeks after the death of President Kennedy on the streets of Dallas, Texas, FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover warned America with these words, "We are at war with Communism and the sooner every red-blooded American realizes this the safer we will be."
The fight against communism, Mr. Hoover said, "... is economic, social, psychological, diplomatic and strategic—BUT ABOVE ALL IT IS SPIRITUAL."
America is losing these battles with communism because the traditional spiritual leaders of the nation—the churches and the clergy—are largely committed knowingly or unknowingly, to the communist side.
THESE ARE SERIOUS CHARGES MADE IN THE LATEST BOOK "THE DEATH OF A NATION" by John Stormer, author of "None Dare Call It Treason" which sold over 7 million copies. I PREDICT that this book will be an even greater seller. IT HAS A MESSAGE THAT AMERICA NEEDS TO HEAR.

CONFIDENT LIVING

Write Down All the Good Things

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

"Every day of the world I give thanks for all the wonderful things that happen to me," declared a young man enthusiastically. "And do you know something? The more I give thanks, the more I have reason to be thankful. Blessings just pile up on me one after another!"

This exultant expression was surprising, considering the long way this fellow had come in his attitude. But in these remarks he had stated a basic law, that the more you practice thankfulness the more you have to be thankful for.

It is a fact that thankfulness tends to reproduce in kind. It reverses the flow of good away from you and sets flowing in your direction benefits and opportunities. The attitude of gratitude revitalizes the mental process by activating other attitudes, thus stimulating creativity. It focuses the complete personality so that you can work better, think better, get along better with people and, in short, enable you abilities to function more effectively in every respect.

I FIRST met this man one night in an East Coast city where in a speech I spoke of the limitations we ourselves put on our own potential, how incredibly we shackle and restrict ourselves by glum and negative thinking. Afterwards this fellow, an impressive-looking man, spoke to me.

"Theoretically I agree with what you said, but it wouldn't work out for me," he declared. "Everything goes wrong, always wrong." "That's strange," I replied. "You look like an unusual person, if I may say so. And when he gave the requested rundown on his educational experience it checked out as top quality; in fact, he had been an honor student. "Guess you have the brains all right," I said. "But of course even the best brains can get fouled up by wrong thinking. Perhaps that is the reason 'everything goes wrong for you.'"

When everything consistently goes wrong with any person, something must be wrong somewhere in the personality pattern. For wrongness inevitably produces wrong results. Therefore some procedure was required to correct the wrongness and build up the rightness element. Then presumably things would no longer go wrong, at least not so many things, but on the contrary would go right with him.

I suggested that he might be helped by the practice of thankfulness. He looked bewildered, evidently considering the idea somewhat irrelevant, but when the process was outlined he carried it out faithfully, with excellent results.

"Everything is wrong with you?" I asked. "That's right, nothing is right!"

"Isn't something right, just a few things, maybe?"

"No, everything has gone wrong. The outlook is not only dark, but black," he finished gloomily.

I took a large sheet of paper and drew a line down the middle to form two equal columns, and over the left-hand column wrote, "Things that are wrong," and over the other, "Things that are right."

"You won't have anything to put in that right-hand column," he growled.

"O.K., let's see when we come to it. Let's start on the things that are wrong." Quickly, and with ease, we filled that column.

"Now, what have you to be thankful for — what's one good thing?" "Can't think of one," he declared. "Well, is your wife dead?" I asked. "Why no, of course not." So I wrote in the right-hand column, "Wife alive and well."

"How about your house — has it burned down?" "Of course not!" So we wrote, "House not burned."

"How about yourself, had a heart attack?" "Are you kidding?" he asked. "Do I look like I'd had a heart attack?" So I wrote, "No heart attack."

"LOOK," I declared. "You told me everything has gone wrong with you. But without half trying we've listed three basic facts that are good, real good. Now go ahead and fill up that column of good things; and every day give thanks morning and evening. Talk thankfulness, think thankfulness. Keep adding up the many things you can be thankful for and go around telling everyone, especially yourself, how thankful you are. You'll be surprised, for in no time at all you will develop a huge thankfulness psychology."

"And this will start a real turn-around for you. It doesn't mean that suddenly everything will be one hundred per cent, for it won't. But one thing is sure, the percentage will start and keep on increasing until the day will come when you will tell me that things are going fine."

This is precisely what happened. This man's life was changed, really changed, by practicing thankfulness.

Every day see how many things you can be thankful for. Say them over to yourself. Skip the negatives. Accentuate the positives. Face the difficulties. They are real, and have to be dealt with. But a positive, thankful psychology has in it the power to make things good, real good.

NEW 'SUPER' AT 1ST CHURCH

Rev. Melvin G. Talbert, new Methodist superintendent of the Long Beach District, will make his first preaching appearance in the city Sunday, speaking at First Methodist, Fifth and Pacific, 11 a.m. on "The Mood and Spirit of the New Church." He is the first Negro superintendent in the Southland Conference, and at 34, one of the youngest ever. His wife Ethelou, whose singing enthralled the delegates at Redlands, will be guest soloist. A reception for the Talberts will follow the service.

'COST OF LOVE'

Dr. Raymond Cramer, director of family counseling and research centers, for eight years' counselor in mental hygiene for Fresno County schools, will discuss "The High Cost of Love" Sunday 7 p.m. in the Service Under the Stars at El Dorado Park Community Church, 3655 Norwalk Blvd.

B.P. Unit Opens

The new educational unit of the Cypress Church of the Nazarene, 5600 Crescent Ave., Buena Park, will be used for the first time Sunday.

BRIEFLY... Msgr. Dolan, New Spire, Navy Chaplain's Thoughts

By LES RODNEY

Back from the big high skies of Mexico and the pleasant pace of the burrowing plodding alongside (and sometimes on) the two-lane highway... to a desk piled with releases, letters, comments, stories and proposed stories. And deadlines. Adios, vacation de 1968. It was nice and, as always, it is also nice to be back.

THE PASSING of one of the area's staunch pillars of the faith, Msgr. Bernard Dolan, and the measure of the man, are eloquently set down in the files of this newspaper. Liked the page one headline in last week's Tidings (the archdiocese newspaper), taken from one of the eulogies: "ABOVE ALL, HE WAS A PARISH—PRIEST." Msgr. Dolan was indeed, above all, concerned with his parish — with the actual wellbeing of the men, women and children who make up the statistics. And he was "ecumenical" before anyone ever heard of the word. These were the qualities which made him so important to the life of Long Beach.

ON TUESDAY afternoon, the huge crane disengaged itself and swung away on Clark Avenue near Compton Boulevard in Bellflower. Its work done. Some 115 feet above the ground, taller than an 8-story building, towered the handsome spire of the new Calvary Baptist Church sanctuary, tipped by the cross. The day before it wasn't there. Now it was the highest point in Bellflower, and will be a landmark far into the future.

Via a phone chat with the Southland office of the firm which built the spire for the 1,500-seat edifice, found out a bit about it. It was made by the Overly Mfg. Co., one of the bigger manufacturers of metal church spires, at Greensburg, Pa., from specifications by the church's architects, Jones & Poper, to conform with the graceful old-fashioned colonial styling of the sanctuary.

The 47-foot-long spire (with five-foot cross) is supported by an internal structural steel subframe, and is anchored to the roof. Exterior panels are formed of 1/2-inch aluminum with baked enamel finish. The cross is treated with a gold anodized finish.

The spire was transported from the east to Long Beach on a rented railroad car. A special crew erected it in two days.

The new sanctuary, which will be dedicated sometime in November, is the culminating achievement of the Calvary Baptist congregation, which has grown steadily under the strong conservative leadership of Dr. H. Frank Collins.

THE LUTHERAN World Federation, which will hold its fifth assembly in 1970 at Porto Alegre, Brazil, has taken a clue from he recent get-together of the World Council of Churches in Uppsala. The exciting role of concerned Christian youth (which was detailed in these pages by aerospace executive Edward Lindaman) was studied, with this result: The voting delegate total has been enlarged by 42, with the specification that all 42 be in the 18-25 year age bracket. Said Dr. Andre Appel, LWF general secretary, "Youth participation at Uppsala showed 'their sense of responsibility and desire to be real partners in the renewal of the church.'"

Participants will come from those at a pre-assembly youth conference who will travel for a month in Latin America as a worldwide study now under way among youth and student groups on the problem of hunger. The Lutheran young people will also report on "world wide unrest and revolution" among students and youth in general, with emphasis on its meaning for the LWF and its member churches.

WE'LL "STEAL" this from the weekly church-paper column by Dr. H. David Burcham of Covenant Presbyterian Church, written while he was serving his two-week stint with the Navy. It speaks for itself as a candid report to his congregation by a Naval officer, distinguished man of God, and American, at a time when the role of chaplain has been under question by some opponents of the Vietnam War.

"This is my 27th year as a chaplain in the Naval Reserve. I would be less than honest if I did not confess that I have a great deal of pride in being a Naval officer. I feel a deep sense of devotion to my nation, and I am happy to serve in this way. I think most of you know that I am not a 'hawk' — especially with respect to our present war. However that may be, there are men to be served who need the ministry of Christ and the Church, the counsel of an understanding chaplain, and the assurance that their dedication and sacrifice is appreciated. There are many of the most responsible and loyal citizens of our country that have real concerns about our military involvement in Vietnam. In spite of these concerns (some of which I share) I, for one, am ready to accept the call of my nation to military service if I am needed. My earnest prayer is that we will all increasingly be searching out ways for an honorable and durable peace that our men may soon be reunited with their families — alive; and that the horror of this war for civilians as well as for military personnel will shortly cease. I would call upon you, the members of my congregation, to join me in fervent prayers daily to this end."

FROM THE PULPIT

The prisoners of San Quentin once voted on the sermon title they would most like their chaplain to use. It was "Fling Wide the Gates."

Most of us want a freedom that we do not have. There are walls about us that hinder our freedom. We are slaves to appetites that make us virtual prisoners. Things that should be our servants become our masters.

"If the Son shall make you free, you shall be free indeed." A Saviour is what we need. And that is what God has provided for us. But still we insist on freeing ourselves, and therefore we remain prisoners and slaves.

The message of emancipation through Christ is the message of the gospel. Perhaps you are not acquainted with the message. Let me invite you to Calvary. Calvary is for you!

Negro Cleric Plays Christ in Pageant

By United Press International

A Negro preacher will play the role of Christ in a mammoth religious pageant to be staged by Christians of both races in Atlanta on Sept. 15.

The pageant, with an integrated cast of 500 persons, will be the largest of its kind ever put on in this country, and the first to feature a black Christ. It will be produced in Atlanta Stadium, which seats 50,000 persons, under the joint sponsorship of the Christian Council of Metropolitan Atlanta, the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and the city of Atlanta.

After a coast-to-coast search for the right actor, the role of Christ was assigned to Rev. William Holmes Borders, pastor of Atlanta's huge Wheat Street Baptist Church.

DON'T GENUFLECT OR CALL HIM 'EXCELLENCY'

New Kind of Bishop for Brooklyn

Brooklyn, New York, that brash, sprawling hodgepodge of humanity which on its own would be the nation's second most populous city, and is by far the largest Roman Catholic diocese, has a new brand of bishop.

Long an area of reserved, up-tight ecclesiastical conservatism, reflected in the newspaper The Tablet, it is now led by an advocate of progressive development in the church.

"We've got to be flexible, to make adjustments," said Bishop-designate Francis J. Madauro, 54. "If we don't make changes to relate to modern life and thought, then we aren't serving people. If we aren't doing that, then forget it."

After assuming the duties two months ago, he is to be installed formally next week as the fifth bishop of Brooklyn, the first native to hold the post. He was born and grew up in one of its roughest sections, Bedford-Stuyvesant, and has served in the diocese throughout his church career.

The man has a warmth and taste for variety to match his lusty melting pot community, and he aims to keep church lines of interchange open with the full range of it. But will that latitude last, he was asked, in today's sometimes rugged church weather?

"Just as long as my blood circulates," he said with a laugh. Some people think the church is changing too fast, he said, "but I don't think so." It's moving out of its insulation, he added, to become a working leaven in concrete circumstances of the times.

Already, he has several experimental ministries going, including "home masses" among discussion groups in many parishes, and eight "ghetto priests" living alone in slum section apartments to share problems of the neighborhoods.

"We want to see if we can reach people more effectively by living as they live, in the same houses with them, identifying with their needs and bringing moral values into their lives," the bishop said.

He himself plans to spend most Sundays visiting in parishes, getting acquainted with congregations on a first-hand basis. And in that relationship, the bishop prefers that people drop the customary form of address, "your excellency."

"It's an antiquated kind of thing," he said. "I'm not excellent."

His relaxed style and open ways reflect the shifting mode throughout the church.

For example, the genuflection — dropping to a knee to greet a bishop — is out by general directive, as of this Sunday.

Bishop Madauro is the first prelate of Italian descent to head the diocese, which heretofore has been run by an Irish line. He earned his master's degree in sociology, and served for 18 years as director of Brooklyn's Catholic Charities, a $45 million-a-year operation with a staff of 10,000, before being named bishop by Pope Paul VI.

Concerning current tensions in the church over the Pope's recent encyclical upholding the church ban against contraception, the bishop says it's "part of the function" of theologians to continue examining the teaching to achieve "clearer understanding" about it.

Asked if an individual's conscience is the ultimate guide on the matter, he said, "It has to be."

In his view of diocesan government, he notes that while the bishop has the authority — to teach, administer and sanctify — "he shares it with priests and also with the people of God. He's got to share it to be effective."

The bishop plans to put increasing emphasis on adult Christian study, mainly through discussion groups concentrating on Scripture, in order to foster "a more intelligent approach to Christian faith and worship."

He likes the spreading "folk masses" on campuses, as a way of involving young people, and says older people also are being increasingly attracted to them, as well as to singing in the revamped English liturgy.

The bishop also is a firm advocate of ecumenical activity, encouraging interdenominational discussions and joint meetings of priests, rabbis and ministers. "An amazing camaraderie is emerging from this," he said.

The son of a barber, the bishop says of his bald head fringed with grey, "It must have been all that lousy hair tonic out of the shop that did it."

He is a 5-foot-11 man, who finds relaxation at the beach, the theater or over a good meal. "I can cook, too," he adds, noting that his specialty is spaghetti with a light clam sauce. True to his Italian heritage, he also likes to sing.

"In the shower, definitely," he said.

As for Christianity's prospects in the modern world,

"We have to continue to examine ourselves, to examine out methods and terminology, to find the best way to relate to people in their present situations," he said. "I see this as an organic process of development and growth, without destroying past values."

"But we've got to be on the ball. We've got to deliver in the best way possible. The most important thing in life is the relationship to almighty God."

COUNCIL BLASTS RUSSIANS

Growing Czech Church Life Among Casualties

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religious Writer

Just a few days before the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia, a Czech Baptist, Valstmil Pospisil, told a youth gathering, "This year with us in Czechoslovakia is the year of hope for further work in the vineyard of the Lord."

But after the military intervention, leaders of the Evangelical Church of Czech Brethren dispatched a letter, saying, "We are deeply shaken by this attack." We do not know what the next few days have in store. Let us all be loyal to the experience of our Hussite and Moravian forefathers that God's truth must be victorious.

The abrupt change in outlook, from an atmosphere of rising confidence and new vigor to a mood of distress and uncertainty, marks the impact of the Soviet-led occupation on the religious life of Czechoslovakia, historically a land of Christian valor and drama.

Church activity there, after 20 years of harsh restrictions, had just begun to bloom anew and flourish more openly. But now a heavy question mark hangs over it.

"It's a nightmare," said Blahoslav S. Hruby, a National Council of Churches expert on religious affairs in Communist countries, and Czech-born himself.

He added that "it was absolutely marvelous the way things had started to move there, the renewal of the church and of social, intellectual and every aspect of life. It was a very promising thing. But now, much of it may die."

Some cautious hopes were expressed in the Vatican that the Soviet interference may not completely reverse the earlier trend toward improved church-state relations, at least not in the immediate future.

"In the name of our whole church we protest against the threat to the process of renewal, against the infringement of our state sovereignty," declared the letter from the Synodical Council of the Czech Brethren Church.

It reminded members that in numerous circumstances in history, Christians have used "armed resistance" to seek a "way out of the most difficult situations," and added:

"Let us pray that we Christians may confess the truth of the Gospel, and that we may think, speak and work in freedom and peace as citizens of our state."

NOT ONLY the Czech churches, but church leaders in neighboring Communist countries, as well as outside the Soviet orbit, have shown their disapproval of the military intervention, sometimes in blunt terms.

The Christian Peace Conference in Prague, made up mostly of churchmen from East European Communist countries, called the occupation illegal, a "gross infringement of the basic principles of peaceful coexistence and a serious menace to world peace."

The World Council of Churches, in condemning the military encroachment, said it acted after checking with member denominations, including those in Communist-ruled lands, and at the specific behest of a Czech member church.

The Czech people had overwhelmingly supported the reforms going on there to enlarge "spiritual and intellectual freedom," the council said. It backed "peaceful resistance to the reimposition" of controls which are "unacceptable to a brave and courageous nation."

Czechoslovakia, which has played an influential role in the struggle for Christian liberty, was the home of the early reformer, John Hus of the University of Prague, burned at the stake in 1415 for pitting the Bible against ecclesiastical authoritarianism, a century before the Protestant Reformation.

The Roman Catholic primates, Josef Beran, esteemed by Protestants and Orthodox as well as by Catholics, was imprisoned until 1963, and has since been an exile in Rome.

BUT religious suppression had been rapidly eased in the eight months since early 1968, with many bishops and clergy freed from prison or ostracism and restored to their posts, seminaries reopened, censorship lifted, and liberties revived, up to the time of the Soviet countermove.

"The democratization had been tremendous," said Hruby, coeditor of a National Council of Churches organ, Religion in Communist Dominated Areas. "Such a peaceful revolution had never occurred under communism. I saw a truly new life for the churches."

HRUBY

The country is mainly Roman Catholic, with about eight million baptized members of that church, but there also are about two million Protestants, a half-million Eastern Orthodox, and 18,000 Jews.

The larger Protestant bodies and their member churches include the Evangelical Lutheran Church, 503,000; the National Protestant Czech Church, 1 million; the Brethren, 290,000; the Reformed Presbyterian Church, 150,000, along with smaller groups of Baptists, Methodists, Moravians and Seventh-day Adventists.

GOINGS ON

The young people of Long Beach Buddhist Church, 2360 Santa Fe Ave., are hosting the ninth annual Southland Buddhist Federation Conference this weekend, with a variety of activities ending Sunday evening with a dinner dance at Lakewood Country Club. Guest speaker Sunday at the church is Prof. John Mize, of Long Beach City College. The day will be devoted to discussions and lectures on Buddhism. Elder A. Theodore Tuttle, member of the First Council of Seventy of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will speak today and Sunday at the Norwalk Stake, with visitors welcome Sunday at 10 a.m. at Excelsior High. Elder Tuttle, who served as a Marine line officer in the Pacific during World War II, is an educator.

Lynwood Trinity, 3655 Ferwood Ave., launches a "Youth Week and a Half" tonight at 7:30 with four original one-act plays put on by high school and college drama students of the church, directed by film and television actor Jack Sahakian. Sunday, 5:30 p.m., David Spore, president and founder of United Action for Christ International, will conduct a seminar on "Personal Evangelism." At 7 p.m. Sunday Rev. Paul Hackett, professor at LIFE Bible College, will speak. Other events will take place through the week at the church, geared to youth.

Rev. Mike McKinney, former night club entertainer now a youth evangelist of Redondo Beach, will launch a revival Sunday, 7:15 p.m. in Paramount Community Assembly, 7826 Jackson St. It will continue every night except Monday and Saturday. Special service for Cuban refugees will be held tonight at 7:30 in Lime Avenue Baptist, 850 Lime Ave., with Rev. Juan Couso, formerly of Havana, who has been called by the church to head up a permanent mission. At the same church, all families attending Sunday morning service will receive a free copy of the book "Death of a Nation" by John A. Stormer, author of the controversial best-selling "None Dare Call It Treason."

Says Beatles Show Religion Growing

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI) — A Catholic priest told 600 persons attending a banquet ending the National Newman Congress in New Brunswick, N.J., that the music of the Beatles and Simon and Garfunkle is "evidence that men today are more religious than ever."

Rev. Anthony J. Padovano, professor of dogmatic theology at Immaculate Conception Seminary, Burlington, said the music of such groups as the Beatles shows a seeking for religion and is much more personal than the music of the forties.

BOOK REVIEWS

New Edition of Bartlett's Quotations Issued

BARTLETT'S FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS. Fourteenth edition revised and enlarged. Emily Morison Beck. Little, Brown, $15.

John Bartlett first published his "Familiar Quotations" in 1855 when he ran the University Book Store at Cambridge, Mass. It was a paperback book quoting 169 authors. The new, 14th edition has 1,750 pages and quotes 2,250 sources.

In 1855 the Bible and Shakespeare led the field, taking up a third of the book. They still lead. Shakespeare now is given 85 pages of quotations; the Bible 53. Bacon, whom some insist wrote Shakespeare, has four pages.

Presidents of the United States are among the quotes. Even Calvin Coolidge, "silent" as he was, gets in a few words. "They hired the money, didn't they?" he said about the European war debts. Once he was asked what a clergyman preaching on sin had said, he said he was against it, Coolidge replied.

AND, IT develops, John F. Kennedy's "Ask not what your country can do for you; ask what you can do for your country," was anticipated by Warren Gamaliel Harding, who opined that "we must have a citizenship less concerned about what the government can do for it and more anxious about what it can do for the nation." (And so, thanks to Kennedy, Harding makes Bartlett's Familiar Quotations, even if only in a footnote.) To show how far back this treasury of a book Isaac Bashevis Singer, reaches, an Egyptian named Amenemope said in the 18th century B.C.: "Better is poverty in the hand of God than riches in the storehouse." — Nat. Honig.

THE AMERICAN LITERARY ANTHOLOGY. Farrar, Straus & Giroux, $6.95.

This is a collection of nine stories, 10 essays and 29 poems chosen by a group of foremost novelists, poets and critics. It is the first of a series to be published annually under a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. The names of a number of publishers were put into a silver bowl and from the bowl W. H. Auden drew the name of Farrar, Straus & Giroux.

This commendable joint enterprise seeks to bring recognition to struggling contributors to small-circulation literary publications around the country whose light might forever remain hidden if not given the exposure of a nationally distributed book.

NOT ALL the contributors are unknown by any means. Among them readers will certainly recognize whose beautiful little story is worth the price of the book alone. But his is only one of a number of fine offerings. Other works are by W. H. Auden, Allen Ginsberg, Ezra Pound and Howard Nemerov.

One can only hope this collection will receive the success it deserves and will be followed by a long line of others. — Forest Jordan.

THE BEAUTIFUL ONES ARE NOT YET BORN. By Ayi Kwei Armah. Houghton Mifflin, $4.95.

A sensitive and perceptive novelist of Ghana sees, through the eyes of a railway clerk, the dashing of bright hopes in a new nation by self-inflating politicians. The railway clerk remains honest but poor; his old schoolmate, with a scorn for integrity, has risen to the post of a government minister. A coup turns out the rascals and the minister, now seeks the aid, in order to escape, of the clerk he despised.

Personal development is to be achieved in work, marriage and parenthood, Prof. Harris believes; the search for identity, she suggests, may be a will of the wisp in that "it is an illusion that the self, the 'I' can be found and experienced and maintained in some isolated nirvana."

IN THE MONEY. By William Carlos Williams.

New Directions, $4.95.

New Directions has reissued this volume first published in 1940. It is a sequel to "White Mule" and the second volume of the Stecher trilogy dealing with the rise of an immigrant family in America. Williams' ear for the vernacular gives his writing a natural flow that never intrudes, though it holds the reader thoroughly. His attention to minutiae builds a realistic canvas as the story progresses, and one feels real empathy with Joe Stecher and his ambitious wife, Gurie, as they battle graft and injustice to "find a business and get 'into the money.'" — Forest Jordan.

Gabriel-Led Rams Escape Surging 49ers

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

There's an old gag about home cooking being one of the three most overrated things in the world, but it seems to agree with the Rams.

Roman Gabriel fired three first-half touchdown passes and the Rams made it hold up for a 21-20 triumph over San Francisco Friday night at the Coliseum.

Viewed by 48,143 patrons, the Rams never trailed as they closed out their pre-season campaign with a 4-2 record. The loss was the 49ers' fifth in six

How They Scored

FIRST QUARTER		Time
Rams 6-0	Casey 63 pass from Gabriel	8:28
49ers 0-7	Gossett kick	14:16
SECOND QUARTER		Time
Rams 14-0	McNeil 57 pass from Brodie	0:48
49ers 0-7	Gossett kick	4:08
THIRD QUARTER		Time
Rams 21-0	Casey 1 pass from Gabriel	11:11
49ers 0-7	Gossett kick	13:36
FOURTH QUARTER		Time
Rams 21-20	Willard 10 field goal	14:20
49ers 20-21	Davis kick	14:20

starts under new head coach Dick Nolan.

Both coaches operated as though the mortgage hinged on the outcome, with Gabriel and rival quarterback John Brodie directing operations the entire game.

Gabriel's passing and Bernie Casey's receiving powered the Rams to a 21-7 halftime lead. The second half belonged to the 49ers as Tommy Davis booted field goals of 11 and 10 yards and Ken Willard's one-yard TD blast with 40 seconds remaining made things a little sticky. An onside kick backfired and the Rams ran out the clock.

The 49ers keep losing and the opposing coaches keep praising them. Allen was no exception.

"I felt the second half was a combination of our letting down and the 49ers playing very well," Allen said. "I thought Brodie did a good job and (Clifton) McNeil is certainly going to help them."

McNeil, who caught one pass for 17 yards against the Rams four weeks ago in Cleveland Browns' logs, was acquired by the 49ers in a trade earlier this week. He paid immediate dividends, catching 10 passes for 196 yards and one TD strike measuring 77 yards.

Casey, an athlete-artist whose sensitive hands produced TDs and oil paintings in a career which brought him to the Rams last summer after spending seven seasons with the 49ers, was presented the game ball. He caught 7 passes for 136 yards and two touchdowns, running his six-game pre-season total to 27 catches and five touchdowns.

Casey's first reception on the night was a 63-yard payoff pitch from Gabriel as the Ram flanker got behind ex-roommate Jim Johnson with 8:28 elapsed.

Dick Bass, who opened and closed his pre-season exercises all in one night, pulled in a 23-yard touchdown reception with 44 seconds left in the opening period and the Rams held a 2-0 TD edge.

McNeil, who felt it was a wasted night because he dropped a possible scoring pass in the fourth quarter, then gathered in Brodie's pass on the fly and streaked 77 yards with only 48 seconds gone in the second period.

The Rams got a big break when Dave Olerich brushed Pat Studsill's punt while attempting to down the bouncing ball and Willie Ellison recovered on the 49er 26. Three plays later Casey outmaneuvered Kermit Alexander in the end zone to haul in Gabriel's 14 yard touch.

Nolan obviously was pleased with the 49ers' second-half performance.

"If we'd played the first half like the second, it would have been a different game. Our second half was by far our best half of the year," the ex-Dallas Cowboy assistant declared.

Asked about the 49ers' multiple offense, Nolan said: "Our progress is good. Remember, it took Dallas six years to perfect it."

McNeil, who broke his arm last year against the Rams in exhibition play, said he asked to be traded from the Browns. "I felt I had too much ability and wasn't going to get to play with Paul Warfield there."

Hart scored the winning run in the sixth inning of the first game. He singled leading off the inning and scored on Lanier's two-out infield hit.

The Giants tagged Gibson (20-7) for two runs in the fourth inning. Jesus Alou singled in Willie McCovey with the first run and Jack Hiatt doubled in Hart with another.

Curt Flood drove in both the Cardinal runs. He singled in Dal Maxvill with two out in the third. Then he singled home Lou Brock with a run in the eighth. That knocked out Bolin (8-4) and brought in Linzy, who retired the last four men in order.

The double loss kept St. Louis' magic number for clinching the National League pennant at nine. Any combination of nine Cardinal victories or San Francisco defeats will wrap it up.

It's No. 28 for McLain

DETROIT (AP) — Willie Horton drove in five runs with a homer and a double and Denny McLain became the first American League pitcher in 24 years to win 28 games as the Detroit Tigers walloped Minnesota Twins, 8-3, Friday night.

Horton capped a four-run inning with a three-run homer, his 32nd off loser Jim Kaat (12-11) and he doubled home two more runs in the seventh. McLain (28-5) became the first American League pitcher to win 28 games since Detroit's Hal Newhouser won 29 in 1944.

The arm-weary McLain, pitching with four days rest for the first time since April, yielded nine hits in beating the Twins for the sixth successive time this year and 13th time in 16 career decisions. His 12-strikeout performance reduced the Tigers' magic number to 13.

McLain was touched for Craig Nettles' first major league home run in the second inning and gave up two more runs in the fifth.

Frank Quilici tripled and scored on Cesar Tovar's third single with one out. Rich Reese then singled and Tovar scored on Rich Rollins' double.

McLain is now two days ahead of the pace set by Lefty Grove, the last American league pitcher to win 30 games in 1931 and 19 days up on Dizzy Dean, the NL's last 30-game winner in 1934. The Detroit right-hander became the first pitcher to win 28 games since Robin Roberts compiled a 28-7 mark with the 1952 Phillies.

Juan Winner, Gibson Isn't

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Reliever Frank Linzy extinguished St. Louis rallies in both games Friday night and San Francisco swept a two-night doubleheader from the Cardinals, defeating Bob Gibson 3-2 in the opener and winning the nightcap 8-7 for Juan Marichal's 25th victory of the season.

Linzy rescued Bob Bolin in the first game as the Giants tagged Gibson with his second loss in his last 20 starts.

Marichal had an 8-4 lead going into the eighth in the nightcap when the Cards scored three runs. Dal Maxvill drove in one run and Tim McCarver two.

When Lou Brock reached first on an error, Marichal was yanked for Linzy. The reliever got Curt Flood on a ground out to end the inning.

The Giants had piled up a big lead in the second game on a two-run double by Jim Hart in the seventh inning and Willie Mays' 18th homer in the eighth.

Hal Lanier's sacrifice fly off loser Steve Carlton (12-10) in the sixth inning had broken a 4-4 tie. Mays had tied the score in the fifth with a sacrifice fly that scored Bobby Bonds.

The Cardinals were down

30 games in 1931 and 19 days up on Dizzy Dean, the NL's last 30-game winner in 1934. The Detroit right-hander became the first pitcher to win 28 games since Robin Roberts compiled a 28-7 mark with the 1952 Phillies.

Detroit struck quickly, scoring four runs before loser Kaat, could retire a batter. Consecutive singles by Dick McAuliffe, Mickey Stanley and Kaline produced one run and Horton cleared the bases with his homer.

Detroit scored two runs in the fourth on a run-scoring single by Don Wert and an RBI grounder by Dick Tracewski.

Horton doubled off Ron Perranowski in the seventh for two more runs.

Messersmith Hurls Blank in First Start

In May of this season Andy Messersmith was a dejected young man. He had a 1-7 record at Seattle and had been taken out of the starting rotation and sent to the bullpen by the Pacific Coast League club.

"I thought sure Seattle was going to send me to El Paso or someplace," said Messersmith.

Andy Messersmith still can't believe the things that have happened to him during the 1963 season. "This has to be the No. 1 thrill though," said Andy after he had shut out Boston 4-0 in his first major league start Friday night.

Given a chance to start after some rather sensational relief work for the Angels, Andy yielded only two hits to the Red Sox and had a no-hitter until the seventh inning.

Joe Foy ruined the no-hit bid by dunking a single into centerfield. "I threw a real good slider to Foy but he made an even better effort to hit the ball," said Andy.

Boston's only other hit as a two-out eighth-inning single to left by Mike Andrews. "That was just a bad curve, I hung it," explained Andy.

Messersmith defeated 1967 Cy Young Award winning Jim Lonborg (5-6), who yielded three runs on four hits in seven innings. The Angels picked up another run in the eighth on Bobby Knoop's double off Jerry Stephenson.

There were two outs in the bottom eighth when Andrews singled. Messersmith then got Dalton Jones on a swinging third strike but the ball got away from catcher Tom Satriano and Jones went to first. Carl Yastrzemski then walked to load the bases and bring up Harrelson.

Bill Rigney went to the mound. "He asked me if I could get this guy out," said Messersmith. "I'm sure he was thinking about a bases-loaded homer Harrelson hit off me in Boston. So was I. But I told him I could get Harrelson out. I'm just glad I did."

Messersmith, after his 1-7 start at Seattle, improved his record to 6-7 and then was recalled by the Angels July 1st.

"I just can't believe the great things that have happened since then," said Andy.

The next assignment: Facing Detroit's Denny McLain (28-5) Tuesday night. "Andy can have him (McLain) if he's ready," said Angel skipper Bill Rigney.

"It would be a thrill to face him," said Andy. It's been a season of thrills for Andy Messersmith.

It's a long way from 1-7 in May with Seattle to 3-0 with the Angels in September. Andy Messersmith now is enjoying every moment of it.

ANGEL ANGLES: The Angels' El Paso club won the Texas League playoffs Friday night and the Sun King players—first baseman Jim Schemer, outfielder Jerry Tamm and pitcher Steve Kestley—will join the Halos prior to tonight's game. Spencer and Tatum homered Friday night as the Sun Kings beat Arkansas 4-3 to take the playoffs.

Spencer figures to be the starting line-up with right-hander Ray Calkins (13-5) going against the Angels' George Burnet (13-13). First baseman Don Mader, remains in St. Joseph hospital, after complaining of dizzy spells in Wednesday night's game.

Blue Moon Blanks Phillies' Indians on 7 Hits

OAKLAND (UPI)—John "Blue Moon" Odom blanked the Cleveland Indians on six hits Friday as the A's pounded five pitchers for 14 hits and a 7-0 victory.

Odom, pitching his first complete game since July 24 and first shutout in three months, permitted only three Indians to reach second in coasting to his 14th victory in 23 decisions.

Oakland pinned the loss on Stan Williams (11-10) with a run in the second on a single by Sal Bando, a walk and Joe Keough's base hit.

The A's added four more runs off reliever Eddie Fisher in the seventh with five hits, including a solo homer by Dick Green and Danny Cater's two-run single.

Then Oakland nipped rookie Mike Hedlund for two tallies in the eighth on a walk and four singles.

The win was Odom's fourth shutout of the season, and third against Cleveland.

White Sox Rap Slumping Birds

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Buddy Bradford's leadoff home run in the 11th inning, Chicago's third homer of the game, Friday night lifted the White Sox to a 3-2 triumph over the slumping Baltimore Orioles.

Bradford's homer, off reliever Pete Richert, dropped the Orioles nine games behind the Detroit Tigers in the dying American League pennant race. It was Baltimore's sixth loss in its last 10 games.

Grant's Name Not Mud(cat) Any More

By GEORGE LEDERER
Staff Writer

CINCINNATI — Two weeks ago, Jim Grant was persona non-grata in the Dodger bullpen. His name was mud in more ways than one.

Beard-wearing, fun-loving and bullpen-weary, Mudcat was feuding with pitching coach Lefty Phillips, who didn't like the beads or his attitude. Mudcat didn't like the way he was being used. It was no fun being a mop-up man and Grant made up his mind this would be his last season in baseball.

A telephone conversation with his mother made Grant reverse his decision, he revealed Friday night. Five scoreless relief appearances in the last two weeks may have contributed.

Whatever the reason, no one has contributed more than Mudcat to the Dodgers' semi-revival.

Behind Mudcat's three-hit pitching in relief of Bill Singer, the Dodgers won the opener of Friday's doubleheader over the Reds, 6-4. They also came from behind to win the second game, 8-6, giving them a four-game winning streak for the first time in 3 months.

Grant rescued Singer in a three-run fifth-inning, which gave the Reds a 4-0 lead. This was the role Grant despised, but it was the only kind of work he could get and it was better than none.

Grant's last appearance with a lead, tie score or even in a close game had been July 31 and such prospects were dim once more. Suddenly the tide turned. Ken Boyer singled home a run and Jim Lefebvre hit a three-run homer for 4-4 in the sixth.

Willie Davis tripled and Ron Fairly's pinch double made it 5-4 in the seventh and a pinch double by Len Gabrielson brought an eighth-inning bonus run.

"I'm not saying what year I'll make it, but I'm closing in on Drysdale's record," announced the beaming Grant, who has not allowed a run in 18 2-3 innings. He has a 6-4 record and an ERA of 2.31, fourth best on the staff.

"I'll never get adjusted to the bullpen," said Grant. "If things were going the way I'd like, I'd be a starter. I'm only 33 and I should be at the peak of my career."

"I had made up my mind to quit, but a couple of days before we left on this trip my mother talked me out of it. She called me and wanted to know why my name hadn't been in the box scores lately. After I explained, she asked me to play one more year."

"I'm very close to my mother and I'll do anything for her. She was the one who encouraged my singing career. If she had asked me to pack up and come home, I'd have done it."

With expansion coming up, Grant doesn't know where he will be next year but he would like to be with the Dodgers, he said, despite the spat he had with Phillips.

"Those last three outings of four innings or more helped me get in the groove again. Of course I'd like to be back with this club. But above all, I want a chance to pitch. If it means pitching every fourth day, I'll go anywhere — even Tuscaloosa."

The Dodgers batted around for five runs to erase a 5-2 Cincy lead in the eighth inning of the second game, a 3-hour, 17-minute marathon in which 35 players saw action.

Fairly again drove in the

SCRIMMAGE, LUNCHEON GREET 49ERS

Cal State Long Beach will hold its first open squad football scrimmage this morning at 9 on the campus field.

The scrimmage, which will last "about" an hour, kicks off a day for the 49er Booster Club, which will be out in force for the workout.

At noon, the boosters will honor the 49ers, coach Don Reed and his staff at a kickoff luncheon at the Lafayette Hotel.

Admission is $4 per person and anyone interested in Cal State football is invited to attend.

lead run and newcomer Bill Sudakis had three of the Dodgers' 13 hits; two doubles.

Reds' all-star second baseman Tommy Helms fractured his left wrist in a collision with Willie Davis at first base and will be lost for the season. He had homered in the fifth inning against starter Mike Kekich, his second of the year and first since opening day.

'DIS AND DATA — Dave's "hole in the opener was his 10th of the year, matching his career best of 1963-64. Brock leads the league with 12 triples, followed by Roberto Clemente, 11.

Arise left after six innings with the score 4-4 because of a pulled hamstring muscle. The loss was Abernethy's first against the Dodgers this season after two wins and one save. Zola Versalles purchased a first baseman's mitt and announced he will try the position in winter ball in Puerto Rico.

Jerry Torborg caught the opener, his strained back to a corner and limping because of a pulled thigh muscle. Torborg volunteered his services to give Tom Haller a rest.

After being stooped in the opener, Sudakis, doubled his first-time home run in the second game. All six of the soft-hitting Dodgers' hits have been left-handed.

Fairly has doubled home runs in his last two pinch hitting appearances. After losing Lee May's fly ball in the sun, Ted Savoy made a spectacular diving catch of Mack Jones' liner to save a run in the fifth inning of the first game. Second game starter Tony Clemente, relieved his right elbow and was removed in the second inning, with two out and the count 2-and-2 on Willie Crawford.

RAIN IN FOREST HILLS ...

Rain in Forest Hills falls most in Forest Hills, or at least it did Friday. Among U.S. Open tennis championship matches postponed was one between Billie Jean Moffitt King (left) and Brazil's Maria Bueno. If rain stops, they'll meet in semi-final competition today.

Rain KOs Tennis; Billie Plays Today

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Rain and forecasts for more of it led officials to order a one-day postponement for all matches scheduled Friday in the U.S. Open tennis championships, and that will delay the men's singles final at least until Monday.

Kaweah Gets 2nd Chance

Kaweah Bar, the swift Pocomino which decided to kick up his heels instead of running in the $115,000 Kindergarten last week at Los Alamitos, gets a chance to prove he's ready to settle down to business tonight in the $8,000 Johnny Dial.

For his added activities in the Kindergarten, he was placed on the steward's list. In order then to run in the Johnny Dial, Kaweah Bar worked out Thursday morning before steward Al Shelhamer and when he races 350 yards without bucking, he was given the okay to race tonight.

Leading rider Robert Adair will be aboard Kaweah Bar in the Johnny Dial minus one piece of equipment — the whip.

Another horse that thought he was in a rodeo instead of on a racetrack going in the Johnny Dial is Bar Bow Deck. She went all out in the Kindergarten trials Aug. 22, bucking all the way down the 350-yard straightaway, even coming next to the rail after having started from the sixth stall.

SEASON'S CLOSER

Gimpel and Rudel Perform in Bowl

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

A typically, Thursday night's "symphonies Under The Stars" concert, which just happened to be the closing such events in this 47th outdoor season in the big amphitheater, was a bonafide symphonic program, consisting of Mozart's Symphony No. 40, the Suite from Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier" and Brahms' B-flat Piano Concerto.

None of these works is unfamiliar, of course, but neither are they the stuff of pops concerts. Unfortunately, much of the season that preceded this final event was pops.

Thus it would be a pleasure to be able to report that the season ended with a bang. Sorry; it did not.

JAKOB Gimpel, returning to the bowl after a 26-year absence, did give a comprehensive and nuance-filled reading of the Brahms concerto, one which, unhappily, did not always project in the large outdoor theater.

But for all of Gimpel's many commendable virtues, this was mostly an unsatisfying performance. To begin with, many of its details were lost in microphoning and amplification. Then, too, the pianist seemed to be playing in a Mickey Mouse will celebrate his 40th birthday Sept. 22 by starring in a huge parade and show at Disneyland.

The event will mark the second weekend of the Magic Kingdom's fall season — anticipated as the busiest in the history of the Anaheim amusement park — which starts Sept. 14.

Special guest entertainment will be featured Sept. 14 and 21, with rock bands entertaining and comedian Pat Paulsen starring in a special Tomorrowland show Sept. 21.

THE BIGGEST Dixieland show in the recent history of the park will be held from 8:30 p.m. until 2:30 a.m. Sept. 28 with enough performers to make a virtual "Who's Who in Dixieland" jazz.

Louis Armstrong will star in the six-hour jazz marathon, backed by Turk Murphy, the Dukes of Dixieland, Santo Pecora and the New Orleans All-Stars, Teddy Buckner, the Firehouse Five Plus Two, Pete Lofthouse's Second Story Men with Barbara Kelly, the South Market Street Jazz Band, the Young Men From New Orleans and many stars from the Mickey Finn nightclub show.

Dixieland at Disneyland will be part of a one-price night with one admission — $6 in advance, $7.50 at the park — paying for admission, all rides and the jazz show.
